Which was reciprocated.

The Senate, preceded by the President, repaired to the Hall of the House, where the Throne of Grace was addressed by the Rev. William Wilson.

After which the Governor made the following communication:

Gentlemen of the Senate and House of Representatives:

You have again assembled for the discharge of the most responsible duties pertaining to civil government; for, while to other departments is committed the charge of administering and executing the laws, yours is the duty of constructing—of enacting them.

We have cause for mutual congratulation in the favorable circumstances with which we are surrounded. Health is restored to our borders, and the Author of all good has crowned the labors of our people with abundance. Industry and enterprise in every department have received their just reward, and our citizens are advancing with rapid strides in all the elements of moral, political, and intellectual greatness. These considerations, under a proper sense of our dependence on the Almighty Ruler, will, I trust, properly prepare us for the important duties before us.

The present is an interesting era in the history of our State; it is well worthy of a moment's consideration. On the first day of November last, the Constitution, under which you have assembled, went into operation. On that day we passed from under the old, to the new. That Constitution, under which, for more than a third of a century, we had grown from a handful to a million of inhabitants, secured and protected in all the rights of freemen, has passed away, and a new instrument taken its place. The change is radical in some of the most essential parts of our organic law, but it has been effected without strife, contention or bloodshed, and without affecting, in the slightest degree, the uniform and peaceable pursuits of our people. How different is this from the scenes that distinguish the changes in the old world, not only of law, but even of rulers. With us an hundred and fifty men assemble at the capital, make and proclaim a new organic and elementary law for the future government of a nation of freemen. They adjourn, proclamation is made and published, their labors submitted to and approved by the people. The old passes away, and our people move on as peaceably and quietly, as though no change had happened.

As Indianians we may well challenge a parallel in the unanimity, with which our people adopted the new Constitution—a majority of eighty-six thousand at the ballot-box. It is now your duty to give the new Constitution a steady and energetic support; to carry forward, without delay, all the changes it proposes, that they may be fairly tested. This we owe to the people, to the country, and to ourselves.

The financial condition of the State is, at all times, a subject of the deepest interest, not only to the people themselves, but to their Representatives.

It is to their action that the people must look for the security of their credit, the preservation of their faith, and the exemption from unnecessary burdens.

I am gratified in being able to state that our financial affairs are improving—economy is manifest in all the expenditures; and the time has now arrived when we can commence the work so long looked for by our people—the reduction of the principal of the State Debt of Indiana.

The entire amount of the ordinary expenses of the State, as audited, and paid by the Treasurer, for the year ending the 31st of October, 1851, was $71,810 36, which is $11,504 74 less than the amount audited and paid for the year ending October 31st, 1850. This sum, for the ordinary expenses of a million of inhabitants, will compare most favorably with any State in the Union, it being per capita, about seven cents for each individual.

The whole amount of revenue paid into the State treasury, during the past year, ending October 31st, 1851, on all accounts, was $508,056 24, which exceeds the amount of the previous year, $58,574 48.

The ordinary expenses of the State government for the ensuing year are estimated at the sum of $133,500, the increase being principally in anticipation of a protracted session of the Legislature. It is estimated by the Auditor of State that from the revenue of the present year, after liquidating our indebtedness to the Bank, providing for the expenses of the State government, and meeting the January and July dividends on the Public Debt, there will yet be a surplus of about $100,000. Whatever the surplus may be, I recommend that it be promptly applied to the liquidation of a portion of the principal of the debt, in such manner as you may direct. My own opinion is, that no intricate or complex machinery is necessary, but that your executive officers, with the addition of a Sinking Fund Commissioner, or of the Agent of State, should be charged with this duty. However small the beginning, it should be made at the first possible moment. By the prompt investment of such surplus, and of the School Fund in the manner hereafter suggested, it is believed that from one-third to one-half a million of the Foreign Debt may be withdrawn within the present fiscal year.

The Domestic Debt is so nearly liquidated that I recommend you to direct the Treasurer of State to give notice to the holders of State Scrip, to present the same for payment within a limited period, after which interest on the same shall cease. The Treasurer should also be authorized from time to time to require the County Treasurers to make deposits of such amounts of State revenue as may be in their hands, and for such services, and for those rendered in making advance deposits in 1850, the Auditor and Treasurer of State should be empowered to make a reasonable compensation.

Your attention is called to the very able and practical Report of the Auditor on the finances of the State; also to the valuable suggestions in the Report of the Treasurer.

The wisdom and propriety of the revenue laws of the last session of the Legislature are manifest in the large increase of taxable property returned for the current year. Sufficient returns have been received to warrant the statement that the whole amount of taxable property placed on the duplicate of 1851 will be not less than two hundred and ten millions of dollars—being an increase of seventy-three millions over the previous year, or more than fifty per cent. The greatest increase has been in the personal property, showing that heretofore a large amount of this description of taxables has entirely escaped the knowledge of the assessors. In the item of corporation stock alone, the increase is not less than four millions of dollars.

The increased tax on the personal property returned chargeable to less than four thousand persons in the various counties in the State, is equal to the whole ordinary expenses of the State government for the past year.

There are doubtless defects in the phraseology and practical operations of the revenue acts of the last session, which will from time to time become apparent, and will require remedy at your hands; but the correctness of the principle of assessing every man's property at its actual value, placing men of all conditions and occupations upon the same footing, commends itself to general approbation. A return to the old system is entirely impracticable.

It will be seen on reference to the assessment, that there is still great inequality in the valuation of lands in adjoining counties. Thus, as an instance, in the county of Dearborn the average valuation of land is $15 81 cents per acre, while in Ohio county it is but $5 75 per acre. This and other considerations may require a reappraisement at an earlier period than would otherwise be necessary.

The constitution requires you, at this session, to provide by law for the appointment of three commissioners to revise, simplify and abridge the rules, practice, pleadings and forms of the courts of justice. You may also make it the duty of these commissioners to reduce into a systematic code the general statute laws of the State.

I recommend you to make provision for the appointment of these commissioners as soon as possible, and to charge them with a general revision of the laws as well as the practice. These measures of reform are necessarily and intimately connected with each other, inasmuch as a well digested code of laws will greatly facilitate the establishment of a good system of practice. By the appointment of these commissioners at an early day, you will have their aid, as far as you progress at this session, in changing our present system of local legislation.

It is of the utmost importance, however, that the persons to be charged with these duties should be carefully selected, for the benefits anticipated from the great reforms herein provided for by the framers of the Constitution, will depend greatly on the manner in which the duties of the commission are executed. They should be men practically and thoroughly acquainted with the workings of our present system of practice and laws, that knowing its defects they may know where and how to apply the proper remedies. They should be working men, for the task before them will be one of no common magnitude, and it cannot be successfully accomplished without great and persevering labor. They should also be men skillful and prudent, for while the proposed reforms are greatly needed, and many great and important changes may be advantageously made, great care should be taken lest, in sweeping away our existing system of legislation, some of the rights and privileges of our citizens may be injured or left unprotected.

I would also suggest, that while care is taken in the selection of men who will not unnecessarily protract their employment, it should not be expected of them to complete their labors in an imperfect or hasty manner. It is much more important that their work should be satisfactory when done, than that it should be finished a few months sooner or later.

It should also be borne in mind that the great bulk of our existing laws have been passed from time to time, or have been adopted from the common law to suit the real or imaginary wants and necessities of our citizens, and that radical changes, even when calculated to be ultimately beneficial, should not be too suddenly and violently made. All laws to be effectual, must be sustained by public opinion, which is the growth of time, especially in a community like ours, made up from the people of the various States of the Union and from various countries, who have brought with them views and partialities in relation to the municipal laws, formed from the various peculiar systems under which they have been raised. I would, therefore, suggest, that in adopting a new system of laws for their future government, sufficient time should be given before the taking effect of such laws, to enable the people to understand them, and to adapt their conduct and business to them, so that they may be prepared to support and sustain them when put into operation.

That portion of the duties of the commission which is imperatively required by the Constitution, namely, the revision of the practice of the courts, will necessarily occupy their time for a considerable period, and it may be worthy of your consideration, whether the revision of the statute laws may not be advantageously expedited, by authorizing them to receive voluntary contributions towards the revision of any particular branches or chapters of those laws. By this means the best legal attainments of the State, and perhaps out of it, might be enlisted in the work of making a good code, especially if it was understood that credit would be given to the authors of such contributions as should be thought worthy of adoption, together with such compensation as the Legislature adopting them should think proper to bestow. The contributions thus offered might be laid before the Legislature, which would be enabled to compare the works of a variety of different persons, and would not be under the necessity of depending wholly on those of the commissioners.

In pursuance of law, I attended the commencement exercises of the State University at Bloomington, in August last. This Institution, then under the immediate control of the late distinguished President, Rev. Andrew Wylie, and an able corps of Professors, I found admirably conducted, and in a flourishing condition. The wholesome rules are strictly enforced: the system of instruction is of the most permanent and thorough character. It is understood that application will be made to the Legislature, by the Board of Trustees, for new powers, in order to enlarge its capacity for future usefulness. The high character of the gentlemen composing that Board, and others interested in its management, is a sure guaranty that you will give them a favorable hearing.

Little did I then think, it would be my melancholy duty to record the death of the late President Wylie! This event, which has so suddenly deprived a family of its honored and beloved head; a church, of one of her most talented ministers; our State, of one of its brightest ornaments, and the University of its learned President, took place on the 11th day of November, 1851, at his late residence! Truly, a great and good man has fallen. The question forces itself unbidden upon us, which way shall we turn, to whom shall we look to repair the loss the University has so lately sustained? As an Educator, in the opinion of those who knew him best, the late President stood unrivalled. A residence among us of more than twenty years, most laboriously spent in the cause of education, had secured for him a reputation, to attain which, might be well considered enough to satisfy the aspirations of the most ambitious of men. May his mantle descend upon some one worthy to bear it!

The other Institutions of the State, under the charge of different denominations, are alike prosperous. No State in the Union, of our population and age, has so many flourishing male and female Colleges, Medical and Law Schools, and other Seminaries of Learning. According to the Census of 1850, we have eighty-three in number, and in attendance, five thousand two hundred and ninety pupils.

This is the most favorable view of the question. The same census shows, that we have seventy-five thousand and seventeen, over the age of twenty years, that cannot read and write. This number, believed by many to be more than we really have, has been greatly enlarged, at a distance, in the public journals.

In our zeal to advance the cause of sound learning, we have neglected to throw our energies and means in the right direction. Whilst we have been building up colleges and academies, have we not forgotten and neglected the great schools of learning, Common, District, and Union schools?

There is a diversity of sentiment on this subject,—yet, it seems to me that your duty is a plain one. It is made your solemn duty, by the Constitution adopted with such unanimity, and which you have solemnly sworn to support, “To encourage, by all suitable means, moral, intellectual, scientific, and agricultural improvement; and to provide by law, FOR A GENERAL SYSTEM OF COMMON SCHOOLS, wherein tuition shall be without charge, and equally free to all.”

Your officers of State have taken great pains to ascertain the condition of the School Fund of the State, which can be properly devoted to the support of common schools. Circulars have been issued to the county auditors, who have generously furnished the required information. From these returns, and other information received, the School Fund is believed to be as follows, to-wit:

Estimated value of County Seminaries and Seminary Funds.....	$100,000 00
Amount of Congressional Township Fund, reported and estimated.....	1,514,853 45
Surplus Revenue fund.....	552,329 92
Bank Tax Fund on loan from State Treasury.....	10,059 85
Bank Tax Fund on hand in State Treasury.....	4 274 61
Bank Tax Fund distributed to Counties.....	42,634 58
Saline Fund on loan.....	22,469 11
Saline Fund on hand.....	1,744 87
Saline Fund distributed to Counties.....	37,056 07
Common School Fund in State Treasury, from Bank Profits, exclusive of interest.....	706,784 62
Sinking Fund on Mortgage to Nov. 4, 1851.....	421,872 28
Estimated value of School Lands unsold.....	250,000 00
Estimated value of 1 225,000 acres of Swamp Lands.....	1,000,000 00
Total.....	$4,664,279 36

This estimate shows a productive Common School Fund of over four and a half millions of dollars—a fund larger, it is believed, in proportion to our population, than that of any other State in the Union, with a single exception. In addition to this sum, the fund will be constantly augmented by the receipt of fines and forfeitures, and the profits of the Sinking Fund.

It becomes your duty to husband this fund in such a manner, and so diffuse its benefits, as to provide for the education of the youth of every county, township, and district. The fund is for the common benefit of the children of the State.

Your Constitution provides, that “the principal of the Common School Fund shall remain a perpetual fund, which may be increased, but never diminished, and the income thereof shall be inviolably appropriated to the support of common schools, and to no other purposes whatever.”

The seeming conflict between the act of the Legislature, of February last, and the new Constitution, on the subject of the appropriation of the proceeds of the Swamp Lands, may be avoided by investing them in the Bonds of the State.

We have had experience, in Indiana, on the subject of loans, on long credits. Debts, bonds, obligations, whether by States or individuals, are weights upon the industry and prosperity of any people. Extended credits to individuals by mortgages on land, are well calculated to depress the energies of the borrower, and, from our own knowledge, in too many instances, are followed by sales, forfeitures, costs and penalties, with the services of a host of officers.

The propriety of investing all the funds now belonging to the School Fund, as far as practicable under existing laws, in the stocks of the State, is worthy of your deliberate consideration.

You will thereby make so much of your debt a domestic debt, the annual income being fixed and reliable.

The more we connect the education of our children with the integrity, honor, and character of the State, the surer we shall be to keep the same inviolate.

This exhibit of the Common School Fund is not only gratifying to every citizen of the State, but it furnishes conclusive evidence of the wisdom of that provision of the Constitution that provides for the election of a State Superintendent of Public Instruction. Much will depend upon the character of this officer, the compensation you shall provide for him, the duties you shall impose. The first requisite is to have a head to the system, to select a Superintendent who will not only with fidelity discharge the duties devolving upon him, but who will devote his whole time with energy to the work, who will travel, examine, investigate, go into every school district, and make himself acquainted with the true condition of things, and report them to the Legislature as they exist, and who, to a thorough knowledge of his business, will bring a spirit of the utmost devotion to the cause.

The organization of this department of education, defining its powers and duties, will require your calm deliberation and judgment. No more important duty is required at your hands. The care and protection of the various school funds, their consolidation into a common fund for the benefit of every child in the State, are subjects of no minor interest. But most of all, it is your duty to provide for condensing and simplifying the entire common school law for distribution in every district in the State, divesting it of all useless machinery, and bringing it within the capacity and understanding of the humblest citizen of the school district.

I recommend that you require each county auditor to keep a record, in which shall be entered a list of the fines assessed by the Circuit courts, Justices' courts, forfeited recognizances, &c., against whom, what for, the amount thereof, collected or not, and allow a compensation to the attorney for the State, by a per centum, to insure the collections. This book would be open to the inspection of every citizen of the county, in which could be seen what disposition had been made of every judgment, the amount remitted by your Governor, &c.

During the past summer, I paid a visit to the lower Ohio, and spent a day in examining the large cotton mill at Cannelton, in the county of Perry. This factory contains 10,800 spindles, and 370 looms, and is pronounced what, to my unpracticed eye, it seems to be, a most perfect establishment. The concern, with its appurtenant boarding-houses, offices, shops, &c., has been erected at a cost of near $400,000, and employs near four hundred hands. It is the first movement made in Indiana, toward manufacturing on a large scale, and deserves the encouragement and good will of the entire State. The town is situated near the upper edge of the great coal field, and by its contiguity to the cotton fields, its cheap fuel, and cheap food, is likely to be a manufacturing point of great future importance. In various parts of the State, the people are turning their attention to manufactures, relying on our natural advantages rather than upon any government aid for success. Most fortunately for Indiana, she contains, within her own borders, all the elements which are needful to stimulate this branch of industry. She has 7000 square miles of territory within the great "Illinois coal field," which is marked one side by the Ohio, and on another by the Wabash River. Within that area, large beds of iron have been found, equal in quantity and quality to any in the country—the Vermillion and Greene county furnaces being now in full and successful operation. Lately iron ore of a fine quality and in great abundance has been found in the county of Perry, near Leopold. In other portions, there are indications that lead and other minerals exist. I refer to these things to show that at no distant day, that part of the State which lies within the coal region, will constitute our great manufacturing district, and that it is the duty of the Legislature to aid in developing its capacities.

I know of no other mode so effectual of rendering this aid, as to provide for a thorough geological and topographical survey of the State. So far from changing the views I expressed on this subject in my last annual message, I am more and more satisfied that no measure within your constitutional power to adopt, could contribute so much to the advancement of the State, in population and wealth,—we want more capital—we want manufacturing skill and labor—we can only invite these among us by exploring and laying bare our manufacturing resources. This can be done only by the hand of science. It will not do to make investments upon mere conjecture: we must have full and reliable information of the nature and extent of our mines, before we can expect foreign capital to open them. A full, thorough survey of the State will exhibit, at a glance, the character of our soils, our coal, our iron, salt, timber, marble, stone quarries, water power, &c., &c., and the people of the State are everywhere alike interested in the measure. The more manufacturing capital there is introduced, the lighter will be the burthens of each individual, the more the taxable wealth of the State. It will lead to a division of labor, so indispensable to the agricultural, and so important to all interests. In our expansive territory, now reaching from ocean to ocean, the States will be thrown more and more upon their individual resources; State legislation will rise in dignity, and the ambition of the wise and good man will be not so much to participate in our national affairs, as to aid in aggrandizing his State. Our geographical position is now commanding, and such it must ever be. Whatever betides the country, we cannot change our commercial and social attitude in this Republic, as a central State, over whose territory the car of commerce must, in all future time, pass. No Indianian can be insensible to our future policy and glory as a State. To attain our true position, however, we must lay open our mines, and clear away the rubbish which hides our wealth from the keen and eager eye of enterprise.

I recommend that you take prompt steps for the commencement of a thorough geological and topographical survey of the State, and that you likewise connect with the present duties of the Auditor or Secretary of State, a Bureau of Statistics.

In connection with these subjects, you are invited to the propriety of calling the attention of our Senators and Representatives in Congress to the bill introduced by a distinguished Senator of Illinois. This bill proposes to give to each of the States in which are government lands, a township of land for each land office district, to be appropriated, under the State authorities, for the purpose of making a full geological and topographical survey of the State. The General Government has about two millions of acres of land in our State. This would give us about one hundred and forty thousand acres. It would be sound policy on the part of the government to make the donation.

The act of last session, entitled "an act for the encouragement of agriculture," approved February 14th, has had a most healthy influence. About thirty county agricultural societies have been organized. Meetings, addresses, and fairs have been held in several of those counties. The proper spirit is aroused among our people. The farmers and mechanics of the country want the benefit of each others' experience and knowledge. The trials, tests, and experiments that are elicited by county and State agricultural fairs, are well calculated to bring forth all these. The State Board will be able to lay before you, during the session, a very interesting report. By publishing a sufficient number of these reports, you may aid the county societies to enlarge their list of premiums, by making a copy of the report of the State Board a part of the premiums awarded; and a number will be desirable to exchange with other States, that we may be able to have copies of the reports of our sister States in exchange therefor, to give as premiums at the contemplated State fair. In this way we may be able to communicate the knowledge of each State and county fair over every county in the State.

I recommend that you make a liberal annual appropriation to the State Board of Agriculture.

The 13th article of the Constitution, prohibiting negroes and mulattoes from coming into or settling within the State, was adopted by ninety-one thousand nine hundred and fifty-five majority of our people, at the ballot-box. It is your positive duty to pass efficient and prompt laws to carry out this provision of the Constitution. This measure, adopted with such unanimity, was called for, independent of other considerations, by the policy pursued by some of our sister States.

In connection with this question, you are again earnestly invited to the subject of colonizing the blacks now among us. It is very desirable that the subject of colonization should receive the attention and encouragement of the General and State governments—that they will co-operate with the aid of the good and benevolent of the country, and with their united efforts in this great work, effect a gradual but final separation of the two races, restore the black man to the land of his fathers, benefit his condition, and remove from us this great source of evil.

The cause of colonization is advancing, and it is incumbent upon

Indiana to extend to it her influence and contributions, however limited the means at her disposal.

You are invited to the many valuable suggestions contained in the reports of the Trustees and Superintendents of our benevolent Institutions.

In addition to the views submitted in my last communication on the subject of these Institutions, to which you are referred, I suggest the propriety of placing the appropriations made to sustain them, under the head of the ordinary expenses of the State, estimates to be made annually, and the appropriations made direct by you to each of the three Institutions. By so doing, you will relieve the county and State officers from much labor in calculating the fractional levies heretofore made. But above all this, the appropriations will be direct upon estimates examined by the representatives of the people, exhibiting every dollar appropriated, and for what purpose. While the people are ready, with liberal hand, to sustain these Institutions, justly regarding them as the pride and honor of the State, they still demand that all expenditures should be made with economy, and the accounting officers be held to a strict accountability. A departure from this principle will most assuredly lead to extravagance.

The State will become vested, in January, 1853, with an interest in the Madison and Indianapolis Railroad, the value of which will be contingent upon the future earnings of the work. A proposition was made at the last session of the General Assembly, by the company to purchase the interest of the State. It may be renewed at the present session. The experience of other States has demonstrated that all connexion between the State and corporations, in the construction and maintenance of public works, is unprofitable, and invariably results disastrously to the State.

The railroad interest is becoming a large and vastly extended one within our borders. The retaining of an interest by the State in any one work, is calculated to excite jealousy on the part of other companies, if indeed it does not actually induce in legislators and other public authorities, a species of favoritism that should not exist.

The letter of the new Constitution positively debars the State from forming such connexions hereafter; and its spirit equally requires, in my judgment, that, where they now exist, these partnerships should be dissolved, whenever this can be done consistently with the terms of the contract, and the interest of the parties.

The stock of this road has heretofore been a very profitable one, and may continue so.

It may be mentioned in this connexion, that during the past year, it is said the company has made all the permanent improvements, by the issue of bonds, consequently an imposition of a large debt upon the road, affecting the interest of the State equally with that of the stockholders. The State has no power to prevent this, has no effective control in the management of the road, in the payment of salaries to officers, &c.

Without entering into details, but denying the right claimed by the company, to purchase the road by sections, thereby diminishing the rights of the State for a comparatively small amount, I recommend a sale of the interest of the State upon such terms as the Legislature shall consider just, fair and equitable. The sooner the State is entirely free from all public works, the better it will be for all parties.

The Wabash and Erie Canal, under the management of the Trustees, has progressed steadily and satisfactorily towards its final completion. It has been navigable during the season just passed as far south as the crossing of the west fork of White River, in Greene county, 281 miles from the State line, and 365 miles from Toledo.

Early in the ensuing season it is expected that 27 miles will be added to this navigation, extending it to Maysville, in Daviess county. From that point to Evansville, 71 miles, which is much the most expensive portion of the work, the labor of constructing the canal is nearly two-thirds performed, and the balance is to be accomplished by the first of November next, according to the terms of the contracts. The opening of the canal from the Ohio river into the heart of the White River country, a district enjoying heretofore no better navigation than that afforded by these rivers, will give an impulse to the agricultural and manufacturing interests of that section of the State highly favorable to its future advancement and wealth. The increasing sales of the canal lands in the Vincennes District, afford evidence that the advantages of this great work are beginning to be appreciated.

The tolls received during the year ending November 1st, amount to $179,282 76, exceeding the receipts of last year by the sum of $22,124 38.

Major John S. Simonson has furnished the State a full and perfect roll of the names of the men who enlisted in Indiana, belonging to the Regiment of Mounted Riflemen, and served in 1846, numbering 260; also the rank of each, where born, when enlisted, under whom, period of service, remarks, &c. He is entitled to your thanks. I recommend that an appropriation be made sufficient to cover the expense of obtaining a large Record book, in which should be recorded the names of all who were engaged in the war with Mexico, from Indiana, their ages, rank, birth, enlistment, period of service, &c. This record to be deposited in the State Library.

Since the adoption of the new Constitution, various complicated questions arising under it, have been presented to the officers of State for their consideration. These questions relate mainly to the right of certain persons elected previously to the adoption of the constitution, to hold two offices, to the question whether certain offices are continued over, or abolished, to the approval of official bonds taken from those appointed to office to fill vacancies. Upon these and similar points, your officers have not failed to give their opinion; yet some of the questions presented are not free from doubt. These require your consideration, and appropriate and definite legislative enactments.

The field-notes, maps, and all other papers pertaining to the survey of the entire lands in this State, have been received from the general government; but in a condition not to be useful, except a key or index be prepared for that purpose. I recommend that an appropriation be made for the purpose of having such key or index provided, to the original field-notes of every section line, private land claim, Indian grant, and Township Maps, &c., &c., in the whole State.

The power to appoint Notaries Public, is now given by law to the Executive. The propriety of requiring the certificate of the Circuit Judge of the Circuit, as to the qualifications of the applicant, the necessity and propriety of the appointment, is worthy of your consideration. This rule is adopted in many of the States.

The highest number in the State Prison the past year, was one hundred and ninety-two. The number pardoned, sixteen. For further details your attention is invited to the able and interesting Reports of the Visitor and Warden of the Prison.

Time has confirmed me in the correctness of the views expressed at the last session, on the subject of giving discretionary power to the courts in the punishment of convicts for Larcenies. Of the one hundred and ninety-two convicts in the State Prison, one hundred and fifteen of them have been convicted for Larceny. You are respectfully referred to my former Message as to the propriety of changing the criminal law in these cases, as well as to the policy of establishing Houses of Refuge and Work Shops in counties or districts, for the punishment and reformation of juvenile offenders. This duty is now positively enjoined upon you by the Constitution.

The Constitution makes it your duty to prescribe regulations and rules for the exercise of the pardoning power. I recommend you to require notice in all applications, and in those made for the remission of fines and forfeitures, the opinion of the county officers, at least those who represent the school fund of the county.

Your attention is invited to the subject of the interest the State has in the Three Per Cent. Fund, arising from the sales of the public lands within the State. For several years the State has received nothing from this source;—a large amount has accumulated in the National Treasury. The General Government being the holder of certain of our State bonds, as trustees for certain Indian tribes, has claimed the right to appropriate our three per cent. fund towards the interest on these bonds, thereby withholding the same from us. The propriety of this course may well be doubted. It has also been suggested that errors have occurred in the estimates of the fund from time to time, which it would be to the interest of the State to have closely examined. Two years ago a Joint Resolution of the General Assembly was passed, authorizing our Senators to attend to this matter and report their action to the next Legislature. Our Senators, at the commencement of the last session, reported that nothing could be effected without the action of Congress upon this subject. Since that time, no further progress has been made towards any arrangement so far as the officers of State are advised.

I suggest the propriety of passing a joint resolution, making it the duty of some one of the Executive officers to make a full investigation of this fund, at the treasury—procure, if possible, the amount due us, and, if it is thought advisable, to enter into negotiations with the Government, in reference to the bonds they hold against us. Your early attention to this subject may enable me to lay the result of this investigation before you at your present session, that thereby you may take some definite action thereon.

It is your duty to lay off the State into eleven Congressional Districts, also not less than three, nor more than five Supreme Judicial Districts, and also such number of Circuit Judicial Districts as you may deem expedient, in such manner as shall be just and right towards the citizens of every part of the State.

The State should provide suitable buildings for all her officers, as near together as possible. The Capitol building should be alone used for the Representatives of the people, and the State Library. The Governor's and Treasurer's houses, with other property owned by the State, might be sold. The proceeds of this property, with the aid that the General Government will doubtless furnish, will be sufficient to erect a good substantial building on the Governor's Circle, that would accommodate all the officers of the National and State Governments, without any tax upon the treasury. It would be sound policy to adopt this course.

I would direct your attention to the propriety of establishing the office of Attorney General. For the want of such an officer it has been frequently found necessary to employ counsel for the State at great expense. The sums paid for such services, added to the losses which have been sustained by the want of legal skill in cases where the State has been a party to legal proceedings, must have, within the last fifteen years, exceeded the highest sum paid for the compensation of an Attorney General in many of the other States. If there was heretofore a necessity for such an officer, there will be hereafter a still greater one, as, under an entire new system of legislation, it must be expected that new questions of law will constantly arise. Such an officer would be of great assistance to the various executive officers and his appointment would be justified on the ground of economy as well as that of necessity.

The nominal sum paid to my immediate predecessor for the Georgia lands, has not been paid into the Treasury. Suit is now pending for the same.

The patent from the General Government has not been received for the swamp lands. It is daily expected. Your attention will be called to this subject by special communication during the session.

The report of the Agent of State furnishes a correct statement of our public debt, and the operations of his agency, to which your attention is invited.

Senators and Representatives, assembled as you are, and constituting the first organization of the law-making power under the new Constitution, your responsibilities are great, and your duties arduous and difficult. There is much for you to do. It is impossible for me, in this communication, to call your attention to the various subjects that require your deliberate consideration and action. If you shall be able to make our Common School Fund secure and permanent, and to establish a system of public instruction adapted to the wants of our people; a system which shall annually and equitably dispense its benefits to every child in Indiana, and which shall be designed to open a union and free school in every two-mile-square district in the State; in which schools, children of every rank and condition, rich and poor, shall meet upon common ground, and shall be taught by the same class of books, and by competent instructors: And if, in addition to this, you shall also be able to devise and establish a Sinking Fund System that shall annually reduce the public debt, and thereby gradually lessen, and finally extinguish that burden; when you shall have accomplished these objects, you may with joy return to your constituents, bearing with you your own approbation, and that of all good men. And be assured, gentlemen, that it will give me great pleasure to co-operate, zealously, with you in promoting these, and all other measures that are calculated to advance the peace, prosperity, and happiness of our common constituents, and of our common country.

Throughout the past year, peace and harmony between the various sections of the Union, have been gradually and firmly established. The great disturbing questions which for a time threatened results, the ultimate issue of which no man could foresee, have been put to rest, and with it the heart-burnings and sectional recriminations which it brought in its train. Our present tranquility is the best evidence of the wisdom and prudence of the measures of adjustment adopted by the last Congress.

The high conservative ground maintained by our State, is shown in the fact that we support no man who favors agitation. Our people want peace, and they esteem no sacrifice, short of that of principle, too great to secure it.

Indiana holds him an enemy to the well being of this Republic, who pursues any course tending to widen the breach between the North and the South. Minor questions sink into insignificance compared to the great paramount duty of every American citizen, the preservation of the integrity of the Union.

Each and all of the laws constituting that compromise which has been as oil cast upon the troubled waters, are assented to, and have been carried out, so far as they apply to us, in word and letter, according to the strictest judicial construction, by the citizens of our State. This has been done cordially and with as near an approach to hearty unanimity, as any measure enacted to reconcile similar sectional differences, can ever be expected to receive.

Indiana desires to see the compromises made under the Constitution, and expressly framed to carry into effect its provisions, remain undisturbed. She says to the south as well as to the north, that these measures must stand—that this sectional controversy must not again be opened up—that time as an element which enters into every thing that is valuable, must test their wisdom and efficacy—that from whatever quarter of the Union efforts shall be made to revive this sectional agitation, Indiana is against it.

She favors not, nor will she by her votes countenance those who favor, the opening afresh, in any manner, under any pretence, the questions so recently and so happily disposed of, let us hope forever. Our duty is plain, abide by the past, sustain the measures faithfully, cease agitation and trust for the future to the intelligence and patriotism of the people, under the guidance of Providence.

We have not entered into a labored and lengthy investigation of the questions referred, for the reason that such labor would be fruitless, so far as the settlement of those questions is concerned. That is peculiarly the province of courts of justice.

The committee, however, would respectfully suggest that if bills were printed in "solid matter," and not in the usual form with blank lines, that pages of the size of the pages of the general laws, would cost about one dollar per page; that generally three pages of ordinary manuscript will make one page of printed matter; from which senators can make an estimate of the cost of printing the respective bills as they may be presented, and the number of pages ascertained. The length of time necessary for the printing of bills of ordinary length is from one to three days.

The committee are also of opinion that while it is the duty of the Legislature to protect the debtor, who has been overtaken by misfortune, from being reduced to utter want, by exacting creditors, it is no less obligatory upon the law-making power to foster and sustain the commerce of society, by maintaining wholesome laws for the collection of debts.

THURSDAY MORNING,
December 18, 1851. }

The Senate met.

The Journal of yesterday was read.

Mr. Hanna, from the committee on the Judiciary, submitted the following report:

MR. PRESIDENT :

The committee on the Judiciary to which was referred bill of the Senate No. 6, have had the same under consideration, and a majority of said committee have directed me to report the same back with amendments, upon the adoption of which they recommend its passage.

Insert after the word contracts in the third line of the first sections, the word "knowingly."

Insert after the word shall, and before the word employ, in the ninth line of the first section, the word "knowingly."

It is contended that the framers of the constitution intend, by the adoption of the 2d section of the 13th article, to make it obligatory upon every man, who employs a negro or mulatto, to first ascertain whether he was in the State at the time of the adoption of that instrument. In other words, that a man may be indicted and fined five hundred dollars, without having intentionally violated any law.

To give this clause the construction contended for as above, and enact this law in the terms proposed, will, in the opinion of a majority of your committee, be in violation of the plainest dictates of humanity, so far as that unfortunate class is concerned, who were in this State at the time of the adoption of the Constitution.

It is evident that not one of them, however industrious, could, under such a construction, obtain even the privilege of laboring for any person outside of the circle of his immediate personal acquaintance. If this rigid construction obtains, there is no telling what interpretation may be given to the following language used in the same sentence: "or otherwise encourage him to remain in the State."

What will amount to encouragement? Is it sufficient to prove that a man is an offender because he gave or sold a meal, which prevented starvation; or that he lodged and protected for a night, a man or woman, from the chilling blasts of such weather as we now enjoy. If this kind of construction prevails, it closes, to this class, the avenues to industrious pursuits, paralyses any efforts which they might be inclined to make to shake off the wretchedness, misery and degradation, which, it is charged, hangs over them. It shuts the door of those who might be inclined to aid that class already amongst us, for in relieving them they might, perchance, admit a trespasser without knowing it. Nevertheless, the penalty must attach.

If a man touch another accidentally, it is no offence against the law; but if such touching is done in a rude, insolent and angry manner, it is an offence. Why this difference? It is the intention with which the act is done that determines the matter. But it may be said that it is the policy of the State to get rid of that kind of population. Admitting that such was the feeling of the framers of our Constitution, it does not logically follow that they intended us, by our construction of the fundamental law, to provide one particular mode, to-wit: by stoning them out.

It may be contended that the whole difficulty can be avoided by requiring such negro or mulatto, who was in the State on the first day of November, to procure something like a certificate to that effect, from some officer. Will this meet all cases that may arise?

Suppose a negro man and family in indigent circumstances, obtain such certificate, and attempt to pass to another part of the State, to better his condition, or where his labor will be more fully rewarded, and he should lose such certificate, are all men, among whom he may chance to fall, prohibited from employing him until he can again produce his evidence? Or in other words, are they in danger of the law by their giving him employment, although his circumstances may be desperate. Would it be the duty of those disposed to give him employment to first ascertain, of a surety, that he was within our borders on the first day of November, in the year 1851? Is it not better to say to those disposed to give him employment, "extend your hand, relieve the suffering, and the State will not require at your hands the 'five hundred dollars,' unless she can show that you knew that you were violating the law?"

Your committee have no disposition to avert, from the heads of those who knowingly violate the law, the extreme penalty of that law; but are only desirous, if this clause will bear two constructions, that the one which will best protect the rights of our citizens and most fully accord with the laws of humanity, shall be adopted, being fully convinced that such is the spirit of the Constitution, and the spirit of the age in which we live.

Mr. Slack moved to recommit the bill to the committee on the Judiciary, with the following instructions:

Amend the — section by striking out the word "knowingly," and add a section or sections to said act requiring all negroes and mulattoes who were residents of this State on the first day of November, 1851, to have their names, ages, and places of birth, registered in the clerk's office of any circuit court of this State, in a book to be provided for that purpose, at the expense of the county, to be entitled the Register of Negroes and Mulattoes.

That the clerk shall have power to hear evidence of said negro's or mulatto's residence, and upon satisfactory evidence being adduced, shall enter said names upon the Register, and give to the applicant a certificate to that effect, which shall be received as conclusive evidence of the fact of said negro or mulatto being a resident of the State of Indiana on the first day of November, 1851.

Amend further—

That the circuit courts be required to give this act especially in charge to grand juries, and that conservators of the peace be required to strictly enforce the provisions of this act.

Mr. Emerson moved to postpone the further consideration of the subject until Monday next, and that the same be made the special order of the day for that day, at 2 o'clock, P. M.

This statement is imperfect, from the fact that the law did not require any official report to be made by the surveyors, to any of the departments; but under instructions from the Governor, they were enjoined to make them to the Register of the Land Office, in whose district the lands were situated. From the statement of the Registers, the total amount will not vary materially from the following:

In the Winamac District.....	884,097 acres.
In the Fort Wayne ".....	67,340 "
In the Vincennes ".....	195,269 "
In the Indianapolis ".....	35,000 "
In the Crawfordsville ".....	20,000 "
In the Jeffersonville ".....	25,000 "
Total.....	1,226,706 "
Deduct estimated entries made before confirmation of title, say...	26,706 "
Leaves a balance.....	1,200,000 acres.

The total expenses attending the selection of those lands, when the accounts are all audited, will amount to about $15,000.

Amend :

1st. Strike out all after the enacting clause and insert the following :

That the Auditor of State be directed to address a circular to the several county auditors, to ascertain the amount of reduction made by the boards of equalization of the respective counties, from the aggregate valuation of real estate as returned by the appraisers, and that the said Auditor of State shall have power to direct the auditor of any such county where reduction has been made, to re-instate upon the duplicate of taxes, the true valuation, which shall equal in amount, the aggregate of the original valuation, and said county auditors shall estimate the proper amount of State, county, and other taxes fairly chargeable thereon, and place the same on said duplicate. Provided, That the board of equalization of such county, at their June session, 1852, shall have power to equalize the valuation of the real estate of said county, in accordance with the provisions of laws.

2d. Strike out all after the word "whereas," in the preamble and insert as follows :

Information has been received that the boards of equalization in several of the counties of this State, at their September session, 1851, made a large reduction of the aggregate valuation of the real estate of their respective counties without authority, and in violation of law, thereby releasing the tax-payers of said counties from their equal and just portion of the public burdens ;

And, whereas, it is important that the taxes should be levied upon the aggregate valuation, as returned by the appraisers, it is the opinion of this Legislature that an emergency exists, and that this act should be in force from and after its publication.

SEC. 2. The treasurer of said county, in his annual settlement with the county auditor and with the Auditor of State, shall settle and account for all revenue collected on the duplicate as amended in the manner prescribed by law, and if any owner of said real estate shall neglect or refuse to pay the full amount of taxes due on the same, said property shall be returned as delinquent for said tax, and the same shall be collected as in case of other delinquencies : Provided, however, that when the owner is not informed of such increased tax, he shall not be liable for the usual penalty and interest.

Mr. Hester from a select committee submitted the following report:

MR. PRESIDENT:

The select committee to whom was referred Senate bill No. 18, have had the same under consideration, and a majority thereof have directed me to report it back to the Senate, with the accompanying amendments, by striking all out after the enacting clause, and inserting the following, and when so amended said committee recommend its passage, and they ask to be discharged from the further consideration thereof:

SECTION 1. That in addition to the property now exempt by law from sale under execution, there shall be exempt from levy and forced sale, under any process or order from any court of law or equity in this State, for debts contracted from and after the fourth day of July, in the year one thousand eight hundred and fifty-two, the lot of ground and the buildings thereon occupied as a residence, and owned by the debtor, being a householder and having a family, to the value of five hundred dollars; and in case the lot of ground with the buildings thereon owned by such debtor and occupied by him as a residence, is not worth in value the said sum of five hundred dollars, then and in that case such debtor may select and retain exempt from levy and forced sale, under any process or order as aforesaid a sufficient amount of personal property, which together with the value of said lot of ground and the buildings thereon, shall amount in value to the sum of five hundred dollars; and in case such debtor is not the owner of a lot of ground with buildings thereon, which are occupied by him as a residence, then and in that case such debtor may select and retain exempt from levy and forced sale property of any kind or description, to the value of five hundred dollars; such exemption as to such lot of ground and the buildings thereon, shall continue after the death of such householder, for the benefit of the widow and family, some or one of them continuing to occupy such homestead until the youngest child shall become twenty-one years of age, and until the death of such widow; and no release or waiver of such exemption shall be valid unless the same shall be in writing subscribed by such householder and his wife, if any he have, and acknowledged in the same manner as conveyances of real estate are required to be acknowledged; nor shall any contract of sale of said homestead be valid unless the same shall be in writing subscribed by the wife of such householder, if he have any, and acknowledged by her in the same manner as conveyances of real estate are required to be acknowledged.

SEC. 2. No property shall by virtue of this act be exempt from sale for non-payment of taxes on assessments, or for the purchase money thereof.

SEC. 3. Whenever by virtue of an execution from any court whatever, the real or personal property of the execution defendant is about to be levied upon, and he shall desire to avail himself of the benefits of this act, the sheriff or other officer having such process, upon demand therefor by said defendant, shall, upon the plaintiff's failing so to do, select a disinterested freeholder or householder of said county, and said defendant may select another such freeholder or householder, who after being duly sworn by such officer, or other officer authorized to administer oaths, to impartially and faithfully appraise said property, shall proceed to appraise the same; if said appraisers shall not be able to agree, they shall select another such freeholder or householder, who being also sworn as aforesaid shall appraise said property.

SEC. 4. Said appraisers shall first appraise the real estate of said defendant, if he have any, and if the same in their opinion exceed in value the said sum of five hundred dollars, and if they shall find the same susceptible of division, they shall divide said real estate, setting off to the defendant the home dwelling, and so much ground contiguous thereto as will amount in value to the said sum of five hundred dollars. The remaining land, after setting off to said defendant as aforesaid, may be sold by said officer in satisfaction of said execution according to law: Provided, however, that the defendant may at any time within sixty days after said appraisement upon his making application in writing to said officer, pay over to him to be applied to said execution, the amount of said appraisement over and above said sum of five hundred dollars; when said officer shall return said process to the court from whence it issued.

SEC. 5. If said defendant shall not be the owner of any real estate, said appraisers shall appraise and set off to said defendant so much of his personal property as will amount to said sum of five hundred dollars, if he shall own so much. And if he be the owner of real estate of less value than five hundred dollars, then said appraisers shall appraise and set off to said defendant so much of his personal property, if he have so much as may be necessary to make up said sum. And if, after the appraisements herein provided, no property belonging to said defendant over and above said sum of five hundred dollars, be found, then said officer shall return said process to the court from whence it issued.

SEC. 6. Upon the return of said process as hereinbefore provided, no execution shall thereafter issue in the same case until the plaintiff, his agent or attorney shall make and file an affidavit in the clerk's office of said court, that said defendant has other property not by law exempt from execution, or that defendant's real estate has increased in value to a sum greater than five hundred dollars; and upon the issuing of such second execution, the officer having the same, shall in all respects be governed by the provisions of this act.

SEC. 7. If the plaintiff, his agent or attorney so require, said defendant, at the time of said appraisalment, shall make an exhibit in writing, under oath to be administered by said officer, of all his real and personal property, which shall be returned with said process to the proper court.

SEC. 8. If said plaintiff, his agent or attorney, shall make and file an affidavit in the court from whence said process issued, that said defendant is the owner of real or personal property not by law exempt from execution, which he fraudulently conceals, the clerk of such court shall issue process against said execution defendant, commanding him to appear at the next term thereof, and answer to the charge therein contained.

SEC. 9. Upon the return of said process, served ten days before the ensuing term, or after a return of "not found," and due publication of notice as in other cases of non residents, said clerk shall docket the said case for trial at the next term of said court.

SEC. 10. Said case shall be governed in all respects by the laws regulating the trial of civil causes, except that said defendant may be examined under oath at the request of said plaintiff, touching the matters in issue, the issue in the case being the owning and fraudulently concealing of real or personal property not exempt by law from execution during the existence of said execution.

SEC. 11. If said plaintiff shall so demand it, he may have subpœna issued for said defendant to testify in said cause, and if after service thereof, said defendant shall fail to appear on the day set for trial, or shall refuse to testify, then said issue shall be considered as decided in favor of said plaintiff.

SEC. 12. The issue herein, and the evidence thereupon, shall be submitted to a jury, and be governed in all respects by the laws now in force governing jury trials in the circuit courts.

SEC. 13. If the issue be found against said defendant, then and in that case, the court shall render judgment against him, and declare the property so found fraudulently concealed, subject to execution, and order the issuing thereof immediately.

REPORTS.

Mr. Milliken, from the committee on Temperance, submitted the following report:

MR. PRESIDENT:

The committee on Temperance, to whom was referred petitions signed by about 23,000 inhabitants of this State, praying for the repeal of all laws granting license to traffic in intoxicating drinks, and to enact such laws as the Legislature, in its wisdom, may deem most effectual to suppress such traffic, have had this subject under consideration, and a majority of the committee have directed me to report the accompanying bill and recommend its passage.

The accompanying bill,

No. 61. A bill to suppress tippling houses, and providing for assessing damages against those who sell or give away intoxicating liquors, and repealing all laws conflicting with its provisions;

Was read a first time and passed to a second reading.

Mr. Goodman, from the same committee, submitted the following minority report:

MR. PRESIDENT:

The committee on Temperance, to whom were referred several petitions on this subject, have had the same under consideration, and a majority thereof have reported a bill for the suppression of the vending and retailing intoxicating liquors, a bill which a minority of said committee cannot recommend or support.

Our first reason why we cannot support said measure is because that it is too stringent, and in advance of public sentiment, so much so that it is very doubtful if the majority of the people would sustain or enforce its provisions.

The second is because it will impede and hinder the action of MORAL SUASION on the minds of the mass of our citizens, which now exerts so tremendous a power among us, and which has almost revolutionized the sentiment of the world, rousing the moral and religious feelings and sympathies of mankind to war against and destroy this evil, and which has and will continue to exert a force and power far more effectual than penal laws or condemnatory statutes, resting on a basis not supported by public sentiment, or sustained by the influence of the community.

For these reasons your committee cannot consent to sustain the bill, their principles being founded on that moral suasion which is addressed to every lover of his country, and the welfare of his fellow man—a basis that cannot be shaken.

Mr. Turman, from the committee on Enrolled Bills, submitted the following report:

MR. PRESIDENT:

Bills of the House, Nos. 44 and 65, and joint resolution of the House No. 5, were this day presented by the joint committee on Enrolled Bills, to Governor Wright for his approval.

MR. PRESIDENT:

The select committee to whom was referred bill of the House No. 67, An act to change the time of holding courts in the 8th judicial circuit, have had the same under consideration, and directed me to report the same back to the Senate with the following amendment; and when so amended, recommend its passage.

The courts in the county of Carroll, shall commence on the fourth Mondays in February and August;

And such courts in the counties of Carroll, Cass and Miami, shall hold two weeks each term, if the business require it. In the county of Wabash, three weeks, if the business require it; and in each of said other counties, one week each term, if the business require it.

Which report was concurred in, and the amendment ordered to be engrossed for a third reading.

Mr. Reid offered the following resolution:

Resolved, That the Door-Keeper be instructed to lay on the table of the Governor, for his use, one copy of each and every bill printed by order of the Senate for the use of the Senate.

Which was adopted.

Mr. Reid offered the following resolution:

Resolved, That the committee on Finance be instructed to inquire into the propriety, as well as necessity, of amending and framing the law for the assessment and taxation of personal and real property, so that no property be twice listed or taxed, but that the same should operate on actual property, allowing the debts of the tax-payer to be deducted from his property as well as debts.

And this rule shall be so construed as that costs resulting from the delay incident to the adjudication upon such surplusage or tautology, or from such leave to amend, shall be taxed against such attorney.

3. The payment of costs, taxed against attorneys, under the above provisions, may be enforced by attachment, judgment, or suspension from practice, or by each of these remedies seriatim.

4. If any case in the Supreme Court, it shall be the duty of said court to ascertain, by reference or otherwise, the amount of surplusage or matter not strictly appertaining to the record set forth in the transcript certified from the inferior court; and, in such case, to calculate the fees for such surplusage, or matter not appertaining to the record, and certify the same in their judgment, ordering the inferior court to cause the amount of such surplusage so calculated, and the cost of reference, if any, to be refunded by the proper clerk to the proper party.

JEFFERSONVILLE, IND., }
January 28, 1852. }

DEAR SIR—In my telegraphic despatch of yesterday, I stated I would write you on the subject of the Senate resolutions in relation to the articles presented by me to the State Library as curiosities.

I object to the resolutions, because I conceive they treat my donation at least discourteously, by diverting it from its intended purpose.

The history of the articles, so far as I am concerned, is as follows:

During my sojourn in Mexico I was in the habit of purchasing books, paintings, pictures, medals, and other articles deemed by me curious or interesting, and I accumulated a considerable cabinet. By a friend returning to the States, I sent two boxes containing articles thus obtained to my wife, and I wrote to her to take from the boxes an ancient armour, some books, paintings, &c., and send them to my old friend John B. Dillon, to be deposited in the State Library. She made her own selections, and not understanding the Spanish language, may have chosen books inappropriate. My daughter, in a girlish freak, wrote in some or all of them, "Taken from the halls of the Montezumas," and this is the hand-writing charged on myself or clerk, as being done at the city of Mexico.

The friend who was the bearer of the articles to Indianapolis, without consulting myself or family thought proper to make a public presentation in my name, to the Legislature of the State for the purpose of being deposited in the State Library as curiosities. The donation, as I understood, was accepted, and the deposit ordered accordingly. I had no wish to create notoriety in the matter, and, had I been consulted, would have adhered to the presentation through Mr. Dillon.

On the arrival of Quitman's division at the main plaza, in the city of Mexico, on the 14th of September, 1847, it was ascertained that a great number of Mexicans (supposed 500) were plundering the National Palace, and Col. Watson, of the marine corps, was ordered to drive them out, which was done at the point of the bayonet. My own regiment was engaged in repulsing attacks from the streets and house-tops until night, and bivouacked in the Palace after dark. The armour was taken from the palace, and was one of about two hundred suits deposited there. These armours may have been in Mexico since the days of Cortez—they unquestionably belong to a former age; and, as I understood, had been used on gala days, under the Spanish government. I do not know if they were ever used under the Mexican authority. I thought them curious, and only valuable for their antiquity; and as many of my brother officers were sending suits of this armour to their friends, and the States from whence they hailed, I supposed a similar present to the library of the State of my adoption, and where I had spent thirty years of my life, would be acceptable, perhaps gratifying.

The charge that any of the articles were taken out of the cathedrals or churches, by myself or through my agency or encouragement, is wholly untrue. As above stated, the books, paintings, pictures, medals, charms, &c. (for I brought away and sent home several medals of my Lady of Guadalupe, and my Lady of Los Remedios,) were purchased by me from Mexicans, and paid for with my own money. The persons from whom they were bought were Roman Catholics, and it can scarcely be believed that these persons would desecrate and plunder their own cathedrals or churches. Those knowing the Mexican character, and aware of the veneration and reverence Mexicans feel for their religion and its ordinances, cannot believe it! I am not aware that I committed any offence against religion or morals, in their purchase or disposition.

Perhaps I may be singular in my desire for obtaining Roman Catholic theological books. During the last fall and summer I purchased, at a second-hand book store in St. Louis, a Roman Catholic version of the Bible, a Prayer book, and other theological books, in the English language. I also purchased, at the Catholic book store, a number of copies of Father De Smit's "Oregon and the Rocky Mountains," and distributed them among my friends. This singularity, I hope, is not criminal, and trust that this Bible, Prayer book, &c., will not make me amenable to the charge of stealing them from the cathedrals or churches of St. Louis. Among my friends I am proud to count a number of Priests, and citizens of the Roman Catholic church, men whom I esteem for their talents and tastes; and knowing their worth, and appreciating their friendship, were I to donate the articles now in the State Library to individuals, I should certainly give those men the preference. Not having the honor of a personal acquaintance with the Reverend gentleman and Catholic citizens of Indianapolis, and not doubting their worth or respectability, I cannot conceive that I would do them any wrong or injustice by preferring those whom I know and esteem for their personal relations to myself. I therefore most solemnly protest against the disposition of this donation made by the resolution of the Senate. I protest against diverting the articles from the object for which they were accepted. I protest against the disposition made by the resolutions, whatever may have been the motives of their introduction, or whatever the language in which they may be couched. They contain an implication against myself which no verbal explanation can remove, and which the next generation must consider palpable. I claim the right, in case the State authorities wish their removal from the State Library, to dispose of them as I deem most appropriate.

Respectfully, your friend, &c.,

JOHN S. SIMONSON.

HON. T. WARE GIBSON.

On motion by Mr. Athon,

The following communication was ordered to be spread upon the Journal:

At a meeting of the City Council of Jeffersonville, held January 13th, the following preamble and resolutions were adopted:

WHEREAS, The obstruction in the navigation of the Ohio river, by the natural dam at the Falls, seriously embarrasses the business and impedes the prosperity of our community, while it interrupts the trade and travel on a great national highway, and the concurrent opinion for nearly half a century of intelligent minds most conversant with the resources and wants of our great valley, and free from private interest, having recommended a canal or similar improvement on the Indiana shore, as the best remedy for this impediment, and the national importance of this work, requiring the aid of Congress, while false charges of private interest and speculation are industriously spread abroad for sinister purposes against the friends and advocates of such an improvement, truly demanded by the great interests of navigation and business of the West: Therefore,

Resolved, by the Mayor and Council of the City of Jeffersonville, unanimously, That, sanctioned by the opinion and selection of the intelligent pioneers of the West in 1803, in 1805-6, and again in 1817, added to our own convictions from examination, we urge upon Congress to make an appropriation for the construction of a canal or similar improvement near the Indiana or deepest chute of the Falls of the Ohio river, and on or near the Indiana shore, as the best mode of improving the navigation of the Falls.

Resolved, unanimously, That having through our assessors, other officers and by individual examination of the assessment rolls, with other reliable sources of information, knowledge of the ownership of real estate and other property in Jeffersonville and its vicinity, near the Falls, we denounce the charge of private speculation or private interest in such property prompting or producing the movement in Cincinnati in favor of a canal on the Indiana shore, at the Falls of the Ohio, as wholly untrue, and deny that the committee on the subject in Cincinnati or her city authorities own any such property, while tenfold in value of such real estate is owned by citizens of Louisville to the total value of such ownership in Cincinnati or its vicinity.

Resolved, That the bill introduced into the House of Representatives, in Congress, by the Hon. David T. Disney, embraces the great objects of a proper improvement of the Falls, free from partiality to either shore, with a favorable regard to the private interest invested in the present canal, and we respectfully urge the passage of the same by Congress.

Resolved, That we request the General Assembly of Indiana to renew the recommendations and instruction of the Legislature of this State, in favor of an appropriation by Congress to commence a canal or similar improvement on the Indiana shore of the Ohio at the Falls.

Resolved, That the foregoing proceedings on the subject of the Falls be published, and a copy forwarded to the members of our Legislature from this county, and each of the members of Congress from Indiana.

W. F. COLLUM, Mayor.

A true copy.

MR. PRESIDENT:

The undersigned, members of the Senate of Indiana, viewing with deep regret and displeasure the passage of House bill No. 83, being a bill for the purpose of districting the State for Congressional purposes, do hereby enter our protest against the bill aforesaid, as well as the passage thereof, and offer the following reasons in support of our opinion and protest:

First. Because the said bill does not divide the State, according to law, into contiguous territory, composed of the proper number of inhabitants, or ratio, according to the act of Congress; but, on the contrary, is composed of territory neither compact or contiguous, and uneven in its number of inhabitants,—all of which could have been easily corrected.

Second. Because this bill divides former districts for party and personal purposes, separating counties which have long been identified as one in principle and interest,—whose relations, commercial as well as political, have been of the closest and most friendly kind, and whose people are opposed to the principle of forming new and untried friendships and associations.

For these and other reasons, we hereby enter our protest against the passage of said bill, and request that the same be entered on the journals of the Senate, in proof of the same.

REPORTS SUBMITTED.

By Mr. Hanna, from the committee on the Judiciary :

MR. PRESIDENT :

The committee on the Judiciary to whom was referred House bill No. 34, have had the same under consideration, and a majority of said committee have directed me to report the same back, with one amendment, upon the adoption of which they recommend its passage.

Amendment first. Strike out all of the first section, after the word "office," in the ninth line of said section, and insert the following:

Such index shall be a double index, giving the name of each grantor alphabetically, and also of each grantee in the same order; together with the number or letter of the book, and the page in which each deed is recorded.

Which was concurred in, and the amendments ordered to be engrossed for a third reading.

By Mr. Hanna, from the same committee:

MR. PRESIDENT:

The Judiciary committee, to whom was referred Senate bill No. 56, have had the same under consideration, and a majority of said committee have directed me to report the same back, with one amendment, upon the adoption of which they recommend its passage.

Amend by striking out from the enacting clause, and insert the following:

That the board of commissioners or other competent authority doing county business in any county in this State be, and they are hereby authorized to appropriate and set apart the annual dividends accruing to said county from stocks held by such county in its corporate capacity in any railroad corporation, to the support and for the use of common schools in such county.

SEC. 2. This act to take effect and be in force from and after its publication.

Which was concurred in, and Senate bill

No. 56. A bill authorizing the board of commissioners of the county of Washington, and other counties similarly situated, to appropriate the annual dividends arising on the stock owned by said counties in the New Albany and Salem Railroad Company, to the support of common schools in said counties;

Was read a second time, and ordered to be engrossed for a third reading.

MR. PRESIDENT:

The committee on the Judiciary to which was referred a resolution of the Senate, inquiring into the constitutional power to levy a specific tax for road purposes, have had the same under consideration, and a majority of said committee have directed me to report that, in their opinion, the levy of a specific tax is prohibited by the spirit of the first section of article 10 of the Constitution, which, among other things, provides that the Legislature "shall prescribe such regulations as shall secure a just valuation for taxation of all property, both real and personal," &c.

If a specific tax of so much per acre, for instance, was ordered, it would certainly not be according to the just valuation of real estate, for one acre might be worth fifty dollars, and that immediately adjoining it worth only five, and yet a specific levy would tax each to an equal amount, as if they were of the same value.

Which was concurred in.

By Mr. Reid, from the same committee:

MR. PRESIDENT:

The Judiciary committee, to whom was referred resolution of the Senate, inquiring whether an act to provide for the election of prosecuting attorneys in the 4th and 8th judicial circuits, approved January 16, 1844, is repealed by an act entitled "An act to repeal an act therein named, and to revise the statutes of 1843 relative to the election of prosecuting attorneys," approved February 14, 1851, have had the same under consideration, and a majority thereof have instructed me to report that, in their opinion, said act, approved January 16, 1849, providing for the election of prosecuting attorneys for the 4th and 8th circuits, is not repealed by the act of February 14, 1851.

Which was concurred in.

The accompanying bill,

No. 71. A bill to amend article 2 of chapter 42 of the Revised Statutes of 1843, concerning liens on boats and other vessels, repairs, &c., requiring attachment creditors to file bonds;

2d amendment—Add after the 18th section, the following:

SEC. —. The prosecuting attorneys of the proper circuit may appear before any justice of the peace, mayor or judge of a city in his circuit and prosecute all criminal offences specified in this act, and in such case there shall be taxed, as costs, on conviction against the defendant, two dollars and fifty cents, as a fee for said attorney to be paid as the other costs.

Mr. Dunn presented the following protest against the passage of House bill No. 83, a bill to district the State into congressional districts.

Whereas, on the fifth day of this inst., House bill No. 83, being a bill to district the State for congressional purposes, &c., passed the Senate, and on the same day was presented in open Senate a protest against the passage of said bill, with the reasons for dissent, in writing, signed by Houston Miller from the counties of Crawford and Orange, Joseph G. Marshall from the county of Jefferson, and George G. Dunn from the county of Lawrence, which was presented by and on behalf of said Senators, and duly entered upon and made a part of the journal of the proceedings of that day. And whereas, on the day following thereto, that is, on the sixth day of the same month, by the order of the Senate, and against the consent and remonstrance of the Senators who had signed and presented said protest, there was stricken from the journal of the Senate of the proceedings of the preceding day, a part of the protest which had been so entered upon the Journal, which part so stricken from the Journal is as follows, to-wit:

“1st. Because the committee appointed by order of the Senate to report a bill for this purpose neglected to report a bill themselves, as well as neglected to report on two bills referred to said committee for this purpose, until there was not time sufficient to mature and perfect the same, nor until the bill of the House was reported to the Senate.”

This was the first, among a number of reasons assigned by those presenting that protest for their dissent to that bill and the action of the Senate upon the subject. It was made a part of the protest, and as such, with every other part of it, went upon the Journal. This reason was lawfully a part of that protest, and was lawfully, with every other part of the protest, upon the Journal, and being upon that Journal, thus lawfully, was a part of the Journal itself. The Constitution makes these positions clear. The 26th section of article IV, provides that "any member of either House shall have the right to protest, and to have his protest, with his reasons for dissent, entered on the Journal." Here the right to protest is secured to any single member; and the right to have that protest, with his reasons for dissent, entered on the Journal, is in like manner secured by the Constitution. Whenever that right is claimed, it must be granted or the Constitution is violated, and that protection which was thus designed to be secured to small minorities against oppression from unscrupulous and violent majorities, is trampled under foot. Against every tendency to such a condition of things, the undersigned now and at all times will enter his solemn protest; and he does now for himself, and on behalf and in the name of his constituents, whose rights have been violated, whose interest has been sacrificed, whose wishes have been set at defiance in the passage of said bill No. 83, and whose constitutional right to remonstrate, through their representative on this floor, against these wrongs and indignities, and to have that remonstrance entered upon and preserved in the journal of the proceedings of the Senate, has been invaded and violated by the action of this body, in causing to be obliterated from that Journal a part of his and their former protest, solemnly remonstrate and protest against that act.

Because that act, while the Senate recognized the right to protest and to have the same, with the reasons therefor, entered on the Journal, and permitted it to be exercised, has made that right inoperative, by striking out what by the Constitution was bound to be entered upon the Journal as a protection and vindication of the weak against the injustice and usurpations of the strong.

Because a minority have thereby been deprived of a constitutional means of showing to their constituents their own faithfulness to the public interest, and the disregard of that interest by a majority on this floor.

Because, a minority have been deprived of a natural right which is asserted in the Constitution, of giving their own reasons, in their own language, for their conduct, and been forced to use such reasons, only, as an arbitrary majority were willing to tolerate.

Because, such conduct of majorities is against the law of nature, of God, and of all other law which recognizes the right of thought and speech, and the obligation to think freely and to speak honestly; is subversive of the fundamental principles of this Government; is against all respectable precedent, and is destructive of the right and the power which justly belongs to the people to hold a public servant accountable for his official conduct.

Because, its tendency and effect is to force a falsehood from the lips of truth; to strangle the exposure of official delinquency; to trample down and crush the weak in the mere wantonness and violence of brute strength; to encourage among our people a disregard of law, human and divine; to encourage the spirit of the mob, which, in its blind fury, will not discern between good and evil, but victimizes the innocent and guilty together; endorses the vilest assumptions and usurpations of ruthless ambition and remorseless despotism, and gives a sanction to their infamous maxim that "might is right."

Because, it is a plain violation of another and absolute command of the Constitution. The 4th article treats of the legislative department of the State,—establishes its character, and fixes its powers and duties. There are no powers in this body but what are there provided for; and the duties there prescribed cannot be disregarded without fault. The 12th section of that article declares that "Each House shall keep a journal of its proceedings, and publish the same." Was this clause of the Constitution regarded, when the Senate struck out, and refused to keep a part of the journal? The clause in the protest stricken out, was on the journal, as by the Constitution it was bound to go. It was thus a part of the proceedings,—a part of the "journal of proceedings" which that Constitution which we have sworn to support, says, emphatically and without any limitation, we "shall keep" and "publish." It was a part of the journal, else why was it, or how could it be stricken from the journal? There is no pretence that anything was placed on the journal not embraced in the protest. The journal was a copy of the protest; it was obliged so to be. But now, since a part has been stricken out, it is no copy. The protest is on the files. Place it beside, and compare it with the journal. They do not agree; they did, but do not now. Nothing has been added to the protest,—something has been stricken from the journal. A reason has been suppressed; a fact has been blotted out of that journal. It is no longer a true copy—a true journal, but it is a false copy and a false journal. It now bears false witness. Its usefulness is thus destroyed; its object defeated, and the people who required us to "keep and publish" it for their use and protection against unfaithful servants, are deprived of their rights.

This point of objection to the action of the Senate is not answered by saying the amount struck out was not great. A greater injury might sometimes result by striking out less. A bill of the utmost consequence for good or ill, might, after having passed or been defeated, be withdrawn from the people, or forced upon them by the temporary absence of one or two whose votes had been given for or against the bill, if the Senate has the right to strike out a part of the journal. Two votes in the affirmative stricken out, might leave less than the requisite number to pass a bill which had in fact passed, as the unmutated journal would show. If the Senate may at pleasure strike from the journal, by the same reasoning it may add to it; and so a bill, having failed, by this amending process, could be passed, if, by accident, those who had voted against it should be absent for a sufficient time to enable the friends of the measure and the advocates of amendment to correct the journal, by striking a few names from the list of "nays," and adding them to the list of "ayes." Thus it is seen that this new doctrine of the power of the Senate to amend the journal, as it is falsely called, would be an admirable system of irresponsible corruption in the hands of an unscrupulous majority, or even a very large minority. But it is not amending; it is falsifying. Amend means to make better. When the term is applied to records of this description, it is understood that such alterations are made as will present the truth accurately. Now it was a truth that the journal exactly copied the protest. That part of the journal was already of perfect and literal accuracy. Any alteration made it worse, not better,—made it false, undeniably, and not accurately true. The pretext for this infraction of the Constitution, and open violation of a solemn obligation to "keep a journal," is fallacious and absurd. It will not do, as an excuse, to pretend that the part stricken from that journal, reflected upon a committee of the Senate. There is no saving clause in the Constitution for the protection of tender skins or sensitive committee men. "Each House shall keep a journal of its proceedings, and publish the same." That is all. There is no escape from language thus direct, unqualified, imperative. That each House has the means of protecting its journals from abuse in the shape of falsehood, vulgarity or other objectionable matter, whether presented in the shape of a protest or otherwise, is not controverted. But that means rests in the power of each House to punish members even to the extent of expulsion, for such abuses of their privileges. No such question, however, arises in this case. The language is decorous in its character, and it is believed to be true, precisely and to the extent there set down. The committee there referred to, had certainly failed to make, at any time, a report of any bill to the Senate. Two bills had been, at an early day in the session, referred to them for consideration, where they remained until returned by the committee, without recommendation or other evidence of having been considered, in obedience to an order of the Senate. More than seven weeks of the session had transpired. Another bill had been introduced by a member into the Senate, and there considered. A bill had originated in the House, and such proceedings thereon had, as that all knew it would pass that body. That was bill No. 83. And still that committee had made no report. These are facts, uncontroverted. If they were, the unobliterated part of the journal abundantly prove them. Here was a delay,—a very great and unusual delay of action, by that committee, upon a subject of interest to every part of the State. They omitted to make any report at any time. Is it a hardship, then, that it should be said that they "neglected to report"?—for exception is not taken to anything else. If this reflects upon the committee, in what does that reflection consist? In the facts of the case, or in the language used to represent those facts? Those who signed that protest, were under no parliamentary or other obligation to adopt smooth circumlocutions to announce their just displeasure at the deep wrong forced upon their constituents by combinations that had been permitted to organize and acquire such strength as to overwhelm all the proper usages of legislation, to gratify private hatreds, or secure power to a selfish and most reprehensible ambition. In this act of the Senate, in blotting out a part of that complaint and protest, the undersigned feels that it is but an effort to add insult to an injured and betrayed people; to deprive them of their rights; to make them helpless, and then defy and mock them in their helplessness. Against all which the undersigned now does, and at all times will, most earnestly and solemnly protest.

GEORGE G. DUNN.

Mr. Berry offered the following resolution :

WHEREAS, The Senate passed House bill No. 83, a bill dividing the State into congressional districts, and Whereas, a minority of the Senate enter their protest against said act of the majority of the Senate, in which said protestors did use the following words "because the committee appointed by order of the Senate to report a bill themselves as well as neglected to report on two bills referred to said committee for this purpose until there was not time sufficient to mature and perfect the same nor until the bill of the House was reported to the Senate," and Whereas, the Senate afterwards on motion did order the words quoted above stricken from the Journal. Therefore be it

Resolved, That the reasons, which governed the majority in ordering said words to be stricken from the journal, were, that their opinion was, that, a protest in parliamentary law is a solemn declaration made in writing by a minority of a deliberative body to testify their dissent from the proceedings of a majority, and that in this sense is it secured to Senators by the constitution of the State. The constitution securing this parliamentary right does not license a protestor to misstate facts, to justify his act or to misrepresent those differing with him or to censure a minority; the non-action of a Senator or a committee; neither does it allow him to use reasons why a bill should not have passed, in a protest, that would have been unparliamentary for him to have urged in debate, when the bill was on its passage, why it should not pass.

And inasmuch as the committee did not neglect to act or disregard their duties but frequently met and could not agree on a bill, hence the protestors misrepresented the action of the committee, and as allusion to the unreported action of a committee cannot parliamentarily be made in debate, it cannot be the proper subject of censure or praise in a protest. To the end that the committee should not be improperly represented and that parliamentary usages be maintained said words were ordered to be stricken out, that the journals should exhibit only truth.

Mr. Berry offered the following resolution in lieu of one that failed on the 9th inst., for want of a quorum:

WHEREAS, The Senate, on the 5th inst., passed House bill No. 83, entitled "a bill dividing the State into Congressional districts":

AND, WHEREAS, A minority of the Senate did enter their protest against said act of the majority of the Senate, in which said protestors did use the following words: "Because the committee appointed by order of the Senate to report a bill for this purpose, neglected and refused to report a bill themselves, as well as neglected to report on two bills referred to said committee for this purpose, until there was not time sufficient to mature and perfect the same, nor until the bill of the House was reported to the Senate":

AND, WHEREAS, At the reading of the Journal of the next day, a motion was made to strike out the words quoted above, during the pendency of which the protestors authorized the Assistant Secretary to strike out the words "and refused," after which the Senate did order the remainder of said words, as quoted above, stricken from the Journal. Bill No. 83 was never before the committee censured. The protestors caused imputation of refusing to report to be stricken from the Journal, and the Senate caused the other, of neglect, to be stricken out. Thus the protestors and the Senate both used their undoubted right to correct the Journals, and each used the same means, that of striking out what each believed to be untrue, and they both exercised this right on the same day:

AND, WHEREAS, It is untrue that the committee did not report back the two bills referred to it "until after the bill of the House was reported to the Senate," for said committee did report back the bills referred to it four days before the House bill was reported to the Senate, and sixteen days before said House bill passed the Senate: Therefore, be it

Resolved, That the reasons which govern the majority in ordering said words to be stricken from the Journal were: that their opinion was, that a protest, in parliamentary law, is a solemn declaration made in writing by a minority of a deliberative body to testify their dissent from the proceedings of a majority, and that in this sense only is it secured to Senators by the Constitution of the State. The Constitution securing this parliamentary right, does not license a protestor to misstate facts to justify his acts, or to misrepresent those differing with him, or to censure a majority, the nonaction of a Senator or of a committee; neither does it allow him to use reasons why a bill should not have passed, that would have been unparliamentary for him to have used in debate when the bill was on its passage, why it should not pass; and inasmuch as the committee did not neglect to act, or disregard their duties, but frequently met and could not agree on a bill, hence the protestors misrepresented the action of the committee; and as allusion to the unreported action of a committee cannot parliamentarily be made in debate, it cannot be the proper subject of censure or praise in a protest. To the end that the committee should not be improperly represented, and that parliamentary usages be maintained, said words were stricken out, that the Journal should exhibit only the truth.

Mr. Milliken moved the previous question ;

Which was concurred in.

By Mr. Reid, from the joint committee on Constitutional Questions:

MR. PRESIDENT:

The committee on Constitutional Questions, to whom was referred the petition of several citizens of Perry county, in relation to the judicial acts of certain justices of the peace of said county, and praying for a legalization thereof, have had the same under consideration, and a majority thereof have instructed me to make the following report:

It appears from the petition that in the year 1847, one William McKinley was lawfully elected and commissioned a justice of the peace for the township of Troy, in the county of Perry, and was sworn into office by one H. P. Brazee, then an acting justice of the peace of said county, who was afterwards re-elected as his own successor, and sworn into office by the aforesaid William McKinley, then an acting justice of the peace as aforesaid. It appears also, that one John P. Jones was lawfully elected and commissioned as a Justice of the Peace for said county, and was sworn into office by said H. P. Brazee, then an acting commissioned Justice as aforesaid, and that the said McKinley, Brazee and Jones continued, during the term of their office, to act as Justices of the Peace within and for the county of Perry, as aforesaid. It further appears that at the time the said H. P. Brazee swore into office the said McKinley, that the commission of the said Brazee had expired, and that a vacancy had occurred in said office by such expiration, of which said Brazee was ignorant when he swore said McKinley into office.

The question presented to this committee by the above state of facts, as well as by the petition is: Are the acts of the aforesaid Justices illegal and void in consequence of the want of power of the said Brazee to lawfully swear into office the said McKinley, his term of office having expired at the time said oath was administered?

By the 12th section of 5th article of the Constitution of Indiana, it is ordered that a competent number of Justices of the Peace shall be elected by the qualified voters in each township in the several counties and shall continue in office five years, if they so long behave well, whose powers and duties shall from time to time be regulated and defined by law; and by article 3, of chapter 4, of the Revised Statutes of 1843, the law is laid down regulating the number of Justices in each township, and their term of office. In article 8, chapter 5, we find the law governing the election of said Justices, and by the 12th article of chapter 4, we are informed that such officers shall be commissioned by the Governor for the term for which they were elected.

From an examination of the petition we are not informed that any error or illegality occurred in either the election or commissioning of any of the aforesaid Justices, but on the contrary, that all and each were duly elected and commissioned according to law. But by article 14, of chapter 4, of said Statutes, every person chosen or appointed to any office of trust or profit under the authority of this State is required, before entering on the duties of said office, to take an oath or affirmation before any person lawfully authorized to administer oaths, and the substance as well as form of said oath is there given; and by the 9th section of said article and chapter, we find the law and the punishment governing all violations of this duty. This section declares that if any person elected or appointed to any office, or deputy of any officer, shall execute any of the duties of any office without having taken and subscribed the oath of office prescribed in this article, or without having executed and filed in the proper office any bond required of him by law, he shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, punishable by fine not exceeding one thousand dollars, upon conviction in any court of competent jurisdiction.

A Justice of the Peace is an officer who is required to take this oath, and from the petition we learn that the oath in substance and spirit was taken by McKinley believing at the time of the qualification by the officer qualifying, as well as the one qualified, that it was lawfully done and binding on all.

But admitting that the Justice who qualified Mr. McKinley may not have had the lawful authority in consequence of the expiration of the term of his commission, yet the omission of the said McKinley to take the oath required is not such an act as would invalidate his proceedings or render his judgments as said Justice null and void as regards third persons. The office is one created by the Constitution, elected by the people and commissioned by the Governor; hence the mere non qualification by the officer, to take the oath, or having done so, but by one having no lawful authority to administer it, only makes him liable to be punished for a misdemeanor, and does not render null and void his acts.

The committee is of opinion that the said William McKinley, H.

P. Brazee and John P. Jones were duly elected and commissioned Justices of the Peace of the county of Perry, and having acted as such that there is no necessity to legalize the judicial proceedings of said Justices as prayed for by the petitioners, wherefore your committee ask to be discharged from all further consideration of the same.

Which was concurred in.

RESOLUTIONS OFFERED.

By Mr. Sleeth ;

Resolved, That the committee on Finance be requested to inquire into the propriety of procuring for distribution a certain number of copies of Dr. R. T. Which was adopted.

Resolved, That the committee on County and Township Business be instructed to inquire into the propriety of providing for all county surveyors to record or have recorded all original field notes and plats that they now have or may obtain hereafter, and that a proper book be furnished by the county boards in which the same may be recorded, and he shall be entitled to a similar fee as by him received for similar services.

Which was adopted.

MR. PRESIDENT :

The select committee to whom was referred Senate bill No. 35—an act authorizing a general banking law—have instructed me to report the same back with the following amendment, and when so amended recommend its passage :

Strike out all after the enacting clause, and insert the following—

SECTION 1. Be it enacted by the General Assembly of the State of Indiana, That it is hereby made the duty of the Auditor of State, on application of any person or association of persons wishing to organize under this act, to cause to be engraved and printed in the best manner to guard against counterfeiting, such quantity of circulating notes, in the similitude of bank notes, in blank, of the different denominations hereinafter authorized to be issued, as may from time to time be needed to meet the demands of those organizations for the purposes of banking.

SEC. 2. Nothing herein contained shall be so construed as to prevent any banker or banking association from procuring their own plates, dies, and other materials for engraving and printing blank notes, and furnishing them to the Auditor, and leaving them ever after in his custody and control, to be used and disposed of as though such Auditor had himself procured them under the preceding section.

SEC. 3. Such bank notes in blank, so procured or placed in the hands of the Auditor as aforesaid, shall be of the denominations usually issued by banks, from one to five hundred dollars; but such notes shall not be of any intermediate number between five and ten dollars, ten and twenty, twenty and fifty, or fifty and one hundred dollars.

SEC. 4. Such blank circulating notes shall be countersigned by such Auditor, and numbered and registered in proper books to be kept for that purpose in his office, and under his direction, by such persons as the Auditor shall appoint, so that each denomination of such circulating notes shall all be of the same similitude, and all bear the uniform signature of such Auditor and register.

SEC. 5. Whenever any person or association of persons formed for the purpose of banking under this act, shall legally transfer to the Auditor any portion of the stocks or bonds hereinafter specified, such person or association of persons shall be entitled to receive from the Auditor an equal amount of such circulating notes of different denominations, registered and countersigned as aforesaid, to be issued by them in the usual course of banking business as money.

SEC. 6. Such stocks shall consist of any portion of the public debt now created or hereafter to be created by the United States, or by this State, or such other States of the Union as pay interest semi-annually, or at any less period on their public debt; but such public debt shall in all cases except as to Indiana Stocks, be, or be made to be, equal to a stock producing six per cent. per annum: and the public debt of this State so deposited shall be, or be made to be, equal to a stock producing five per cent. per annum; and it shall not be lawful for the Auditor to take any stock at a rate above its par value, nor above its market value.

SEC. 7. Such person or association of persons are hereby authorized, after having executed and signed such circulating notes in the manner required by law to make them obligatory promissory notes, payable on demand at the place of business within this State of such person or association, to loan and circulate the same as money, according to the ordinary course of banking business, as regulated by the laws and usages of this State.

SEC. 8. In case the maker or makers of any such circulating notes, countersigned and registered as aforesaid, shall at any time hereafter, on lawful demand at the place of business specified in such note, during the usual hours of business, fail or refuse to redeem such note in the lawful money of the United States, the holder of such note making such demand may cause the same to be protested for non-payment by a notary public, in the usual manner, and the Auditor, on receiving and filing in his office such protest, shall forthwith give written notice to the maker or makers of such note to pay the same; and if he or they shall omit to do so for thirty days after such notice, the Auditor shall immediately, (unless he shall be satisfied that there is a good and legal defence against the payment of such note or notes,) give notice in one of the newspapers published at Indianapolis, that all the circulating notes issued by such person or association will be redeemed out of the stocks held by him in trust for that purpose; and it shall be lawful for the Auditor to apply the said trust funds belonging to the maker or makers of such protested notes, to the payment and redemption of such notes with costs of protest, and to adopt such measures for the payment of all such circulating notes put in circulation by the maker or makers of such protested notes, pursuant to the provisions of this act, as will in his opinion, most effectually prevent loss to the holders thereof.

SEC. 9. The Auditor may give any person or association so transferring stock in pursuance of the provisions of this act, powers of attorney to receive interest or dividends thereon, which such person or association may receive and apply to their own use; but such powers may be revoked upon such person or association failing to redeem the circulating notes so issued, or whenever, in the opinion of the Auditor, the principal of such stock shall become an insufficient security; said Auditor also, at the instance of the owners of such stock so transferred in trust as aforesaid, may in his discretion change or transfer the same for other stocks of the same kinds specified above in this act; or may retransfer the said stocks, or any part thereof, upon receiving and cancelling an equal amount of such circulating notes delivered by him to such person or association, in such manner that the circulating notes shall always be secured in full by such stocks, and shall not be reduced or withdrawn as aforesaid, below the value of fifty thousand dollars of the stocks of any person or association so transferred as aforesaid.

SEC. 10. The bills or notes so to be countersigned, and the payment of which shall be so secured as aforesaid, shall be stamped on their face, "Secured by the pledge of Public Stocks."

SEC. 11. In case such person or association of persons shall fail or refuse to pay such bills or notes on demand, in the manner specified in the eighth section of this act, the Auditor, after the thirty days' notice therein mentioned, may proceed to sell at public auction the public stocks so pledged, and out of the proceeds of such sale shall pay and cancel the bills or notes, default in paying which shall have been made as aforesaid; but such sale shall be made in the city of New York, unless the banker or banking association give to the Auditor written consent, duly authenticated, that such stocks may be sold at Indianapolis.

SEC. 12. Nothing in this act contained shall be considered as implying any pledge on the part of the State for the payment of said bills or notes, beyond the proper application of the securities pledged with the Auditor for their redemption; nor shall anything herein contained be construed to empower any person or association to conduct or carry on the business of banking at any other than the place of business of such individual banker or banking association, which place of business shall in every instance be the same at which their small bank bills respectively are made payable.

SEC. 13. The public stocks to be deposited with the Auditor by any such person or association, shall be held by him exclusively for the redemption of the bills or notes of such person or association, put in circulation as money until the same are paid; and shall in no case be held for the benefit of any depositor or other person having business with such individual banker or banking association, until after the issue of said bank is redeemed.

SEC. 14. The plates, dies and materials to be procured by the auditor, for the printing and making of the circulating notes provided for hereby, shall remain in his custody and under his direction; and the expenses necessarily incurred in executing the provisions of this act, shall be audited and settled by the auditor, and paid out of any moneys in the treasury not otherwise appropriated; and for the purpose of reimbursing the same, the said auditor is hereby authorized and required to charge against and receive from such person or association applying for such circulating notes, such rate per cent. thereon as may be sufficient for that purpose, and as may be just and reasonable.

SEC. 15. All plates, dies, and such like materials of, and peculiar to, any individual banker or banking association which shall have closed business, either by its own voluntary act or by operation of law under the direction of the auditor, shall be by such auditor in the presence of the Governor and treasurer of State, destroyed; and such destruction, specifying the articles so destroyed, shall be officially certified to by all the three aforesaid officers.

SEC. 16. It shall not be lawful for the Auditor or other officer to countersign bills or notes for any person or association of persons to an amount, in the aggregate, exceeding the public stocks, at their value as provided in the sixth section of this act, deposited with the Auditor by such person or association; and any Auditor or other officer who shall violate the provisions of this section, shall, upon conviction, be punished in such manner as the criminal laws of the State may direct.

SEC. 17. Any number of persons may associate to establish offices of discount, deposit and circulation, upon the terms and conditions, and subject to the liabilities prescribed in this act; but the aggregate amount of the capital stock of any such association, shall not be less than fifty thousand dollars.

SEC. 18. Such persons, under their hands and seals, shall make a certificate which shall specify, Fifth. The period at which said association shall commence and terminate; which certificate shall be proved or acknowledged, and recorded in the office of the clerk of the county where the office of such association shall be established, and a copy thereof filed in the office of the Secretary of State.

SEC. 19. The certificate required by the last preceding section to be recorded and filed in the offices of the clerk of the county and Secretary of State as aforesaid, or copies thereof duly certified by either of those officers, may be used as evidence in all courts and places for and against any such association, and shall be prima facie evidence of the facts therein contained.

SEC. 20. Such association shall have power to carry on the business of banking by discounting bills, notes, and other evidences of debt, by receiving deposits, by buying and selling gold and silver bullion, foreign coin and bills of exchange, in the manner specified in their articles of association for the purposes authorized by this act; by loaning money on real and personal security, and by exercising such incidental powers as shall be necessary to carry on such business; to choose one of their number as president of such association, and to appoint a cashier, and such other officers and agents as their business may require, and to remove such president, cashier, officers and agents, at pleasure, and appoint others in their place.

SEC. 21. The shares of said association shall be deemed personal property, and shall be transferable on the books of the association in such manner as may be agreed on in the articles of association; and every person becoming a shareholder by such transfer, shall, in proportion to his shares, succeed to all the rights and liabilities of prior shareholders; and no change shall be made in the articles of association, by which the rights, remedies or security of its existing creditors shall be weakened or impaired. Such association shall not be dissolved by the death or insanity of any of the shareholders therein; nor shall any such transfer operate to release the party so transferring from the operation of section twenty-fifth of this act, making stockholders liable over and above their stock to an amount equal to such stock: Provided, That such individual liability of such stockholder so transferring as aforesaid, shall not extend beyond the period of ninety days from the time such transfer shall be reported to or otherwise filed in the office of the Auditor of State.

SEC. 23. Contracts made by any such associations, and all notes and bills by them issued and put in circulation as money, shall be signed by the president or vice president and cashier thereof; and all suits, actions and proceedings brought or prosecuted by or on behalf of such association, may be brought or prosecuted in the name of the president thereof; and no such suit, action or proceeding shall abate by reason of the death, removal from office, or resignation of such president, but may be continued and prosecuted according to such rules as the courts of law may direct, in the name of his successor in office, who shall exercise the powers, enjoy the rights, and discharge the duties of his predecessor.

SEC. 24. MR. PRESIDENT:

The select committee to whom was referred Senate bill No. 72, have had the same under consideration, and a majority thereof have directed me to report it back with the following amendments:

Strike out all after the enacting clause and insert the following—

SEC. 1. That all laws licensing the sale of spirituous liquors be and the same are hereby repealed.

SEC. 2. Before any person shall be permitted to vend spirituous liquors in any quantity less than one barrel, except for medicinal or mechanical purposes, he shall annually give bond with ten freehold sureties, to be approved by the auditor of the county in which such liquors are designed to be sold, in the penal sum of twenty-four hundred dollars, which bond shall be filed in the office of the said auditor, and shall be by him spread of record, for which he shall be entitled to the sum of fifty cents.

SEC. 3. Said bond shall be made payable to the State of Indiana, and be conditioned for the keeping an orderly house, and for the payment of all damages which such liquor vendor may occasion to the wife and children of any habitual drunkard to whom he may sell spirituous liquors, or to the wife and children of any person to whom he may sell such liquors whilst in a state of intoxication, or to the parent or parents of any minor to whom he may vend such liquors.

SEC. 4. Trials of such actions of damages as may arise under the preceding section, shall be determined by a jury to be selected in the circuit court, if such trial be submitted to such court, or by the justice of the peace trying such cause, according to the laws governing the empaneling and trials by such juries in such courts.

SEC. 5. Such jury, in determining the amount of their verdict, shall not be confined to actual damages, but may assess any sum within the penalty of the bond, in the nature of exemplary damages, which they may deem adequate, not only as compensation for injuries sustained by such drunkard, his wife and children, or the parents of such minor, but to deter others from in like manner offending.

SEC. 6. It shall be deemed sufficient evidence to maintain an action on said bond, to prove that said habitual drunkard, or said person in a state of intoxication, or said minor, was seen in a state of intoxication about the premises of said liquor vender, where he usually vended such liquors, within one year next preceding the commencement of said action; but which fact, together with such other evidence as may be competent to establish the vending of such spirituous liquors to such habitual drunkard, or such person in a state of intoxication, or to such minor, shall be left to the determination of a jury.

SEC. 7. It shall be competent for the plaintiff or plaintiffs in such action, to introduce witnesses to prove that the person to whom such liquors are charged to have been sold, was an habitual drunkard at the time of the selling thereof, and the opinion of such witness shall be received as conclusive testimony, until he be impeached, or his testimony be rebutted by other and sufficient evidence. But the jury shall determine from all the evidence in the cause, whether such person was an habitual drunkard within the meaning of this act.

SEC. 8. The wife, or parents, or, in case they fail so to do within thirty days after a right of action shall accrue on said bond, any one else in their behalf, may maintain an action thereon, for the vending of such liquors to such habitual drunkard, or such person in a state of intoxication, or to such minor, in the name of the State of Indiana, for the use and benefit of such wife, children, or parents as aforesaid, as the case may be.

SEC. 9. In case such action be commenced by any one else than said wife, children or parents, his name shall be endorsed on the cause of action as a relator; but he shall not be liable for any cost whatever which may accrue in such action.

SEC. 10. Such damages as may be collected under the provisions of this act, shall be paid over to the wife of such habitual drunkard, or person in a state of intoxication, or to the parents or guardian of such minor; but in case such drunkard, intoxicated person, or minor, have no wife, but shall have minor children living, then such damages shall be paid to a trustee to be appointed by the court trying such cause, to be expended in the education of such children, under the direction of the court.

SEC. 11. Said auditor shall make out an authenticated copy of said bond, whenever applied to for that purpose, which certified copy, with an endorsement on the back thereof of the names of the relator, the person for whose benefit the suit is instituted, the person to whom such liquors were sold, and the amount of damages claimed, shall be sufficient cause of action in any court, and competent evidence of the execution and filing of said bond.

SEC. 12. Any person vending spirituous liquors in a quantity less than one barrel at a time, except for mechanical or medicinal purposes, without first having executed and filed said bond, as provided for in this act, or vending such spirituous liquors to an habitual drunkard, a person in a state of intoxication, or to a minor, shall, upon presentment by the prosecuting attorney of the proper court, or upon an affidavit filed in the circuit court of the proper county, or before a justice of the peace of the same county, be fined in any sum not less than twenty-five dollars, nor more than one hundred dollars for each and every such offence.

SEC. 13. In all prosecutions under section eleven of this act, the person to whom such spirituous liquors were sold, shall be a competent witness; and proof that the accused keeps the usual implements of a tippling house, or a part of them, or that drunken persons are frequently seen in or about the premises of the accused, or that the article drank in or about said premises, was spirituous liquor, as the witness verily believes, shall be prima facie evidence to sustain such prosecution.

SEC. 14. In all trials for a violation of section eleven of this act, the accused may stipulate before the cause is finally submitted for the payment, or the replevy of the fine and costs, if judgment be rendered against him. But in case he fail so to do, the court, in the event he be found guilty, shall render judgment of imprisonment against him in the county jail, for any term of time not exceeding thirty days.

SEC. 15. Any person resident within the county where such liquors are so unlawfully sold, may maintain an action on said bond against such liquor vender, for not keeping an orderly house, and all damages recovered in such actions shall be paid to the common school fund of such county.

SEC. 16. In case the sureties to such bond are about to leave the State, or have become insolvent before the expiration of the year for which it was executed, said auditor, upon the petition of any twelve citizens of the county, shall notify said liquor seller to present additional and competent freehold sureties, to be approved by said auditor, within five days thereafter; and in case said liquor seller shall fail or refuse so to do, he shall be considered as selling without having executed a bond, and be liable to be prosecuted accordingly.

Resolved, That a committee be appointed to make the requisite arrangements upon this mournful occasion.

Resolved, That the clerk of this House be directed to inform the Senate of the proceedings of this House herein.

The accompanying resolutions were read, when
Mr. Hanna arose and said—

MR. PRESIDENT:

In rising to respond to the resolutions just read, permit me to say that the duty now devolved on me, always embarrassing, is in the present instance doubly so, from the fact that I am suddenly called upon, in the temporary absence of the Senator from Vermillion, to say something in regard to the past history of the deceased.

Henry Hostetter was born in Rockbridge county, Virginia, on the 29th of December, 1801, of respectable parents. He married in Rockingham county, in 1825, to Martha Harrison. In 1833 he removed to Vermillion county, in this State, where he has resided ever since. He has been three times returned by the people of that county as their representative in the lower House. This is a sufficient commentary upon his integrity and the estimation in which he was held by his neighbors, to be thus chosen, in times of excitement, by a people differing with him in politics. He was for the past fifteen years a member of the Presbyterian church, and it is believed that he died in the pure hope and confident joy of an ardent soldier of the cross. He knew that his end drew near, and yet he shuddered not, he shrank not from the awful ordeal which was to bring him into the presence of the All Seeing Eye. What more can be said?

He was beloved by his family, who now weep around his last remains; he was endered to his neighbors by many acts of kindness and benevolence; he was respected by all who new him. His judgment was good, his deportment correct, his life blameless. In a word, he was that noblest of all the works of God, an honest man.

As a mark of honor to the deceased, and in token of the respect we bear his memory, I now move that we concur in the resolutions.

Which motion unanimously prevailed.

Whereupon,

Mr. Hanna moved that as a further token of respect to the deceased, the Senate do now adjourn.

Which motion prevailed.

Noble, of 25 Regent's Square, London, setting forth that he is the holder of six $1000 five per cent. bonds of the State, which, he says, are not only secured by the Wabash and Erie canal, but for the payment of which the faith of the State is irrevocably pledged, and complaining that he has not received any interest on said bonds since January 1, 1841, and asking redress in the premises, have had the same under consideration, and have directed me to report, that while they acknowledge the non-payment of the interest on said bonds to be a fixed fact, a foregone conclusion, and deeply sympathize with the said John P. Noble thereat ; and without troubling themselves with endeavoring to convince him that $3000 secured by said canal, and $3000 secured by the faith of the State, are thereby better guaranteed than $6000 would be, for the payment of which the faith of the State and the Wabash and Erie Canal are pledged. In view of the State debt arrangement so happily effected for the pecuniary interests of the State in the year 1847, with which most of the bondholders have complied, they feel it incumbent on them to recommend that it is inexpedient to grant the redress contemplated in the memorial, and they ask to be discharged from the further consideration of the subject.

The President laid before the Senate the following communication from the Law Commissioners:

COMMISSIONERS' ROOM, }
March 2, 1852. }

HON. JAMES H. LANE,

President of the Senate:

SIR—Please lay the inclosed communication before the body over which you have the honor to preside.

We are, sir, yours, &c.,

GEO. W. CARR,

J. A. LISTON,

WALTER MARCH.

By order of the Board: GEO. W. HARGETT, Clerk.

COMMISSIONERS' ROOM, }
 March 2, 1852. }

Gentlemen of the Senate:

In obedience to the resolution this day adopted by your honorable body, to-wit:

Resolved, That the Commissioners on Revision be requested to report to the Senate at what time, in the opinion of said Commissioners, they will be able to make a report of their labors, for the action of the Legislature; and that said Commissioners, if they are prepared so to do, make a report of the result of their labors so far as accomplished.

The Commissioners have the honor to submit the following:

In answer to the first inquiry we state, that in view of the amount of labor which we are necessarily called upon to perform, in order to carry out the provisions of the Constitution, the act creating this commission, and to meet the just expectations of the people, who have demanded a radical reformation in the whole system of judicial procedure, we are unable, at present, to give any definite idea of the time it may require to complete our labors.

In answer to the second inquiry we state that we have prepared a rough draft of some two hundred sections, embracing the more general provisions of a code of procedure for the circuit courts in civil cases.

As we have not been informed whether it would be the pleasure of the General Assembly that the Commissioners perfect a part of the work assigned them, and report it, or that they should pursue their labors until prepared to report a complete code; we have taken it for granted that the latter was the will of the Legislature in the premises, and, therefore, have no part of our labors in a state of completion to be reported.

All of which is respectfully submitted:

J. A. LISTON,
 GEO. W. CARR,
 WALTER MARCH,
 Commissioners.

By order of the board.

Attest:

GEO. W. HARGITT, Cl'k.

Which,

On motion by Mr. Mickel,

On motion by Mr. Winstandley,

The bill was laid on the table.

The President announced that he now temporarily vacated the chair to give the Senate an opportunity to elect a President pro tempore, upon which occasion he made the following remarks, which,

On motion by Mr. Eddy,

Were ordered to be spread upon the Journal:

SENATORS:

In order to enable you to elect a President pro tempore, I now vacate the chair, in accordance with parliamentary usage.

In taking leave of you, I desire to tender each of you my heartfelt thanks, for the many acts of kindness which I have received at your hands.

The duties of this position are both complicated and arduous; and the task of discharging them difficult and perplexing. In the performance of these duties I have, no doubt, committed manifold errors; but I trust you will each do me the justice to attribute them to the head not to the heart, for I assure you that my conduct has at all times been governed by a sincere desire to discharge faithfully and impartially the duties of this position, and by no other or less worthy feeling. If, therefore, either in debate or in the chair, I have given offence to any one of your number, I frankly entreat your forgiveness; and, from my knowledge of the generous and kindly feeling which you have all along manifested toward me, I know you will grant me that boon.

You have already determined to adjourn on the 10th of the present month, to reassemble on the 20th of the next. Permit me here to declare that in coming to this conclusion, you have, in my judgment, been governed by the earnest desire to promote the best interests of your constituents, and of the whole State. Aware that the people expect you to give them a code simplifying the pleadings and practice of our courts of justice, before your final adjournment, and that such a code cannot be prepared at once, in such a manner as to render it worthy of the State and satisfactory to all interested. No other step than that which you have now taken was before you, unless you had determined to sit here from week to week, without any power on your part to promote the completion of that great object. By leaving this work to a commission, it will, I doubt not, be ready for your supervision and adoption on your return; and the State will thus be placed in possession of a code which the people can understand, and which, without confusion, delay, or embarrassment, will enable the courts of the State to determine causes at once upon their merits.

You have also determined to revise the entire statute laws of the State—to lay before the people in a single volume, all the laws under which they are to live, and by which they are to be governed; that he who runs may read and understand the rule of his civil conduct. This step was not less necessary to the well being of the people, than the one already alluded to. No man can doubt that a committee of six members of the two Houses, chosen as may be determined by their fellow-members, to act jointly in the preparation of this revision, will accomplish the object with greater facility, correctness and dispatch, than the whole Legislature combined. Large bodies move slowly, and necessarily meet with many hindrances not experienced by bodies less numerous. The diversity of opinion alone is sufficient illustration of the truth of this observation. Besides, the difference in the costs of effecting this object by a committee, and that of reaching it by the action of the entire Legislature, is greatly in favor of the former. It will save both time and money and secure a better and more perfect system of laws, than can otherwise be obtained. When you reassemble, the labor of revision will have been performed to your hand, and nothing left for you to do, but the work of examination, and the responsibility of giving it the sanction of your approval. This will not require much time; and a magnanimous people will receive the production of your solicitude and toil, with gratitude, and award you their confidence and blessing.

Allow me here to bear testimony to your constituents of the faithful industry and earnest energy with which you have thus far labored in the discharge of your duties. The first General Assembly convened after the adoption of a new organic law, your first duty was to ascertain the changes which that instrument effected in existing laws, and the manner of enacting new ones—a duty alone sufficient to occupy the time of an ordinary session of the Legislature. Your condition at the opening of the session was not unlike that of a ship at sea without compass or rudder, yet in a few days you were enabled, by intense application, to adapt yourselves to the new order of things, under which the suffrages of your fellow-citizens had called you to act; and aided by the ability and industry of the co-ordinate branch of the Legislature, an immense amount of business has already been originated and disposed of. If, in addition to this, your fond anticipations shall be realized, in the simplification and perfection of a code of practice, and a careful revision of the Statutes of the State, you will have accomplished a mighty work, well worthy the lasting gratitude of your countrymen. God grant that the people of Indiana may always be blessed with servants equally faithful, and earnestly devoted to their interests.

In bidding you farewell for the brief period fixed for our brief separation, allow me to express the hope that your reunion with your families and friends, may be as joyful and happy, as to me this parting is painfully sorrowful. For, rest assured, gentlemen, that the earnestness, perseverance and patriotism which you have uniformly displayed since the opening of this session, combined with the kindness and generosity exercised toward me by each one of you have rendered the period of our sojourn together one of the most delightful periods of my whole life. It is this that gives our parting its bitterness, and makes it hard for me to pronounce the word FAREWELL.

On motion,

Mr. Mickel was called to the chair.

The select committee, to whom was referred a resolution of the Senate, directing it to inquire into the propriety of changing the time of electing members of Congress, have had that subject under consideration, and a majority thereof have directed me to report that in their opinion, after a full view and consideration of the whole subject as connected with the interests of the people, it would be highly inexpedient to change the year of choosing such officers. As one of the many reasons against such change, your committee will state that, to elect those officers at the general election in October next, would be choosing them some fourteen months before taking their seats, which would tend to destroy that immediate and necessary connection and knowledge between the people and their representatives in reference to the wants and wishes of the one, and the responsibilities and duties of the other. What might be the known wishes of the people during a congressional canvass at one time, might be the very reverse fourteen months thereafter.

REPORTS SUBMITTED.

By Mr. Athon, from the joint committee appointed to visit the State Prison:

Mr. PRESIDENT:

The select joint committee appointed in pursuance of a resolution of this body, to repair to the State Prison and investigate the extent of the injury occasioned by the fire which occurred on the 27th of February last, report:

That on arriving at said Prison, they found that two buildings situated within the enclosure, had been almost entirely consumed by the fire. One of the buildings used as a machine shop, 380 feet long and 45 feet wide, two stories high and built of brick, was so utterly destroyed that in the opinion of your committee, the walls will have to be entirely removed. Another building, being separate from the machine shop only 22 feet, a house 130 feet by 36 feet, built of brick, two stories high, and used as a bath house, dining room, wash house, bake room and tailor shop, was also seriously injured; but owing to the timely aid of the fire companies of Jeffersonville, assisted by several from the city of Louisville, the fire was so suddenly extinguished, that in the opinion of your committee, the walls may again be used.

Your committee are of the opinion, that had the three large cisterns which are in the enclosure, been located differently, the second building could have been saved; but owing to the close proximity of the cisterns to the buildings, as soon as the fire had spread to any extent, the heat became so intense, it was found impossible to approach them, and hence the firemen were driven from the water.

We would suggest the relocation of the cisterns, so that, in the event of a similar occurrence water can be procured.

Your committee were unable to form any definite opinion as to the cause of the fire, there being two causes assigned for it, design and accident. It was impossible for your committee to ascertain whether the destruction was brought about by accident or by the hand of an incendiary. Your committee are gratified to state, that there cannot be the least blame attached to the Lessee, or any officer connected with the Prison. Moreover, they take pleasure upon this occasion to state that the citizens of Jeffersonville acted with commendable zeal in staying the further progress of the devouring element.

Your committee received from Mr. Miller, the former architect of the buildings, a careful estimate of the losses and the probable cost to again rebuild and repair said Prison, which estimate is placed at $14,070.

All of which your committee would respectfully submit, and ask to be discharged from a further consideration of the subject.

The Senate met.

The President laid before the Senate the following communication from the Governor and Auditor of State:

EXECUTIVE DEPARTMENT, }
 INDIANAPOLIS, May 7, 1852. }

HON. JAMES H. LANE,
President of the Senate:

SIR:—You will please to lay before the Senate the enclosed communication from E. W. H. Ellis, Auditor of State, upon the subject of the late sale of the stock the State held in the Madison and Indianapolis Railroad.

By this arrangement, the State has discharged fifty-nine thousand, three hundred dollars ($59,300) of the two and a half per cent. stock by the sale of thirty-one thousand, four hundred and fifty dollars (31,450) of stock in said road. I doubt not you will fully approve of the transaction, as one alike advantageous to the State, and creditable to your officer.

I concur most heartily in the views expressed by the Auditor, on the subject of creating a Board of Sinking Fund Commissioners, composed of the Treasurer, Auditor and Agent of State, with the express view of liquidating a portion of the principal of our public debt, annually.

Whatever surplus may be in the Treasury after the payment of our July interest, should be promptly invested in our two and one-half per cent. stocks.

Our true policy is to liquidate and discharge a portion of our public debt annually.

With this view, the suggestions contained in this communication, on the subject of setting apart, annually, a certain fixed, definite tax, to be specially appropriated to the payment of the State debt, are worthy of your consideration.

Your attention is called to this subject in connection with the views expressed in my two annual messages. I trust you will give it the attention that its importance demands.

Yours respectfully,
 JOSEPH A. WRIGHT.

OFFICE OF AUDITOR OF STATE, }
 INDIANAPOLIS, May 5, 1852. }

His Excellency, Joseph A. Wright:

SIR:—In conformity with the provisions of an act of the present Legislature, enacted at their first session, authorizing the sale of the stock held by the State in the Madison and Indianapolis railroad, amounting to the sum of $31,450, I proceeded to New York under the direction of yourself and of the Treasurer of State for that purpose. Finding it impossible at that time to effect a sale for cash at the par value of the stock, and believing that the interest of the State would be promoted in the operation, I succeeded in effecting a negotiation through the medium of a house of high character for financial integrity, Messrs. Winslow, Lanier & Co., for the exchange of the stock in the railroad for two and a half per cent. stock of the State.

The particulars of this transaction are as follows:

E. W. H. Ellis, Auditor of the State of Indiana, in account with Winslow, Lanier & Co.

								$31,450 00

WINSLOW, LANIER & CO.,
PER WARD H. BLACKLER.

(E. E.) NEW YORK, March 31, 1852.

At the date of this negotiation the railroad stock was selling at 97 cents on the dollar, and holders of 2½ per cent. State stocks were refusing 51 cents for them. It is also to be noted that the transaction was without any expense of brokerage or commission.

Thus it will be seen that, for this sum of $31,450, the State has absorbed the sum of $59,300 of the principal of her debt. The transaction not being precisely what was contemplated in the act, may possibly require the approval of the Legislature. The new bonds are in my possession, issued to me as Auditor of State, and are at the disposal of that body.

The occasion seems to be a proper one to urge upon the representative of the people the propriety of making some provision for the gradual reduction and ultimate extinction, at no distant day, of the principal of the debt. We have carried out in good faith all the provisions of the State debt arrangement, under the acts of 1846 and 1847—our people have contributed freely of their substance to meet the annually accruing interest, and are yet willing and determined to preserve the faith they have solemnly pledged. They look, however, as it is their duty and their privilege, not alone to the payment of interest, not to a mere preservation of faith inviolable, but to the adoption of means for that "consummation most devoutly to be wished," the entire liquidation of the debt itself. Adopt such means, place it within their power, and the tax payer would go forth with renewed vigor to his daily toil.

It is a question, too, for the profound statesman, how far the men of one generation have the moral right to transmit their burdens to a future one—whether indeed they may justly impose a debt of millions upon posterity, who were not responsible for its creation, and have not participated in its benefits. It was the doctrine of President Jefferson that such rights do not exist in the present generation. Admitting his position, while it does not follow that posterity may repudiate the debt thus transmitted, it furnishes an additional motive in favor of meeting those liabilities ourselves.

There can be no more suitable time for the commencement of this work than the present. Our domestic debt is so nearly liquidated as no longer to be a source of embarrassment. Our citizens are everywhere prosperous—emigration is pouring in from every quarter, and our public works are bringing the markets of the seaboard to almost every man's door. However small the beginning, we can lay the foundation of a system, which will gradually and surely, result in the liquidation of our debt.

The following extract from the report from this office for 1850 shows what may be effected by this gradual process.

"It is a matter of deep interest to all who have the credit and welfare of the State at heart, to inquire what prospect there may be for the gradual and ultimate liquidation of the principal of the public debt. It is hardly probable that before the 1st January, 1854, any considerable sum can be applied to this purpose. The following table is prepared on the supposition that on that day the sum of $100,000 may be appropriated to the payment of principal; that this amount may be annually increased in the sum of $10,000, and that to it may be added the sum saved from the interest account. The table is for twenty years, and supposes for its basis the debt to be $7,524,000, and the annual interest $326,200. The results shown by the table are highly satisfactory, and the ability of the State to realize this estimate is by no means overrated.

1874	300,000	15,235 45	315,235 45	105,976 44	3,119,538 80

Thus in 1874, the Public Debt, by this gradual process of reduction, will be diminished to the sum of \$3,119,538 80, and of this sum two millions are estimated as $2\frac{1}{2}$ per cent. stocks."

A levy of five cents on the hundred dollars' valuation of real and personal property would produce the sum here estimated.

The establishment of a sinking fund, under proper management, has been found in other States the most efficient and least objectionable plan for this purpose. The first requisite would be the levy of a fixed and permanent tax, such for instance as the sum above named, to be devoted exclusively and inviolably to this object, as also all the accruing income of the fund. A Board of Sinking Fund Commissioners might be constituted of the Treasurer, Auditor and Agent of State, under whose control all such funds should be expended in the purchase of the bonds of the State, commencing with the $2\frac{1}{2}$ per cents.

These bonds should be held by the Auditor of State for the benefit of the fund, and interest paid upon them annually, as if held by individuals. In the event of a rise of the bonds in market above their par value, provision might be made for an investment in other stocks of known solvency, although such a policy would be of doubtful expediency. Such an event is hardly probable in the case of a Five per cent. stock, and our tax-payers would be better satisfied with an investment in our own stocks, even at an advanced rate.

Such a system would add very little to the duties of the officers, and would possess the merit of simplicity and economy. It would at once place Indiana in the front rank of solvent, debt-paying States; it would cheer the tax-payer under his manifold burdens; it would invite emigration to our borders, and would hasten the era, contemplated by the framers of our new Constitution, when there shall be no more public debt.

It will also render practicable what many hope to see accomplished, and what reason, justice and public opinion may one day require at our hands,—the resumption of the Trust committed to the Trustees of the Wabash and Erie Canal, with its revenues and liabilities. We shall then point with pride to the escutcheon of Indiana, as without stain or blemish.

Hoping these suggestions may be of service in calling attention to this subject,

I have the honor to be,

Most respectfully, &c.,

E. W. H. ELLIS,

Auditor of State.

SEC. —. Such prosecuting attorney shall file an information in the name of the State of Indiana, with the clerk of the circuit court in such county, requiring such company to show cause why their rights of incorporation herein derived shall not be forfeited; and notice of such proceedings shall be given by proper process upon the secretary of such company, at least ten days prior to the term of such court, or in his absence upon the president thereof, or if the president be absent, then by publication of notice for three weeks successively before the commencement of such term, in any newspaper printed in such county, or if none, then in a newspaper in this State nearest thereto.

SEC. —. Upon the hearing of such cause, if the court shall give judgment against the company, such court shall appoint some disinterested person as receiver, who shall give bonds with sureties in such penal sum as the court may direct, and thereupon shall immediately take possession of the assets, both real and personal, of such company.

SEC. —. The Auditor of State shall, upon the proper demand of the receiver, deliver to him the stock of such company deposited in his office, but the order of such delivery shall be made by the court, and a copy of such order, certified by the clerk thereof, shall be first served upon such auditor by the receiver.

SEC. —. The receiver shall make report at each and every term of the said circuit court, of his doings in all matters relating to his trust, and shall, at the term next following his appointment, report specifically the kind and amount of all assets in his hands, and their probable value. In the final settlement of his account, the court shall direct the payment to him of such sums out of the assets as shall be deemed an equitable compensation for his services.

The President laid before the Senate the following communication from the Auditor of State.

OFFICE OF AUDITOR OF STATE, }
 INDIANAPOLIS, May 12, 1852. }

HON. JAMES H. LANE,
President of the Senate:

SIR:—Please lay before the Senate the following communication, and oblige,

most respectfully,

E. W. H. ELLIS,
Auditor of State.

OFFICE OF AUDITOR OF STATE, }
 INDIANAPOLIS, May 12, 1852. }

HON. JAMES H. LANE,
President of the Senate:

SIR:—I have before me the following resolution adopted by the Senate on yesterday :

WHEREAS, section 1st of article 10 of the constitution makes it the duty of the legislature to provide a uniform and equal mode of assessing the property of the State for taxation; and

WHEREAS, there is great diversity of opinion on the subject; therefore,

Resolved, That the State Auditor be requested to answer the following interrogatories:

1st. Does the present mode of assessing the landed property of the State bear equally upon every portion of the State?

If not, what would be the best mode of equalizing the assessments?

Also please give us the probable expenses of any board of equalization you may recommend, and the probable cost of the district and State Boards of Equalization as provided for in the bill that has passed the House on this subject, and was lost in the Senate.

In answer thereto I have the honor to submit the following statement :

The manifest design, spirit and intention of the act of 1851, authorizing the re-appraisement of the real property of the State, were to bring upon the tax duplicates all such property at its full, actual value. This intention was, however, very generally overlooked or disregarded by the appraisers, and the result is, an appraisement as objectionable for its inequality as any that have preceded it. Contiguous counties, where there is no perceptible difference in the quality, location or value of lands, are valued at opposite extremes, and individual cases of complaint are exceedingly numerous. Statement No. five (5) of the appendix to the last annual report from this office shows the average value of lands including improvements in the several counties of the State. A few specimens will suffice to show this inequality:

Dearborn, Ohio and Ripley counties are contiguous.

Dearborn is valued per acre at.....	$15 81
Ohio is valued per acre at.....	5 75
Ripley is valued per acre at.....	4 24

Again:

Jennings is valued per acre at.....	$5 07
Bartholomew is valued per acre at.....	9 37

Again:

Rush county is valued per acre at.....	$14 87
Shelby county is valued per acre at.....	8 72

Again:

Huntington county is valued per acre at.....	$3 72
Grant county is valued per acre at.....	6 00
Wabash county is valued per acre at.....	7 31

Examples of this kind may be found all over the State in proof of the injustice done under the appraisement, and that it has not "been equally upon every portion of the State."

The act of 1851 provided a remedy for this inequality in the case of individuals within the county, but none for the unequal appraisement of the several counties.

To apply the proper corrective, a State Board of Equalization is imperatively required, and the only question ought to be, how shall it be constituted?

Several plans have been proposed.

In 1841 a State Board of Equalization was provided for, the General Assembly being authorized to elect one person resident of each judicial circuit, who were to act in conjunction with the Auditor of State.

In Ohio the new law provides that "the State Board of Equalization shall consist of one member from each Senatorial district, elected by the people, who act with the Auditor."

Another proposition has been made, that the executive officers of the State shall alone constitute the Board of Equalization.

All of these plans are liable to objection. Under the act of 1841 the Legislature might err in the selection of the individual; and indeed no one man would be competent to fix the proper value of an entire judicial circuit, without personal examination of the territory.

Under the Ohio law, the State Board would be too unwieldy for the prompt and speedy despatch of business, while a board constituted of the executive officers could not do justice to so large a territory, not one-fourth of which they had ever personally visited.

The true system, I think, is contained in the bill before the Senate, commencing with the equalization of individual assessments; then of townships, counties, and finally of congressional districts, as contemplated in the bill referred to.

Beginning at the foundation, the complaints of individuals are the first to be adjusted by the county board. They also equalize the townships with each other. When this is accomplished, the several county auditors, who are the chief financial officers of their respective counties, and whose daily duties make them conversant with the valuation of property, assemble at the centre of each congressional district, to equalize, by counties; all the real estate therein situated.

One of their number is then selected from each district, who, with the Auditor of State, constitute the State Board, and all is subject to the final action of this body.

There can certainly be no more simple, systematical or efficient course of procedure, for the attainment of this desirable object,—the equalization of the public burdens.

The expenses under the bill may be estimated as follows:

Per diem of 91 county auditors on district boards, 6 days
each, at $2 50,	$1,365 00
Per diem of 11 delegates to State Board, at $30 each,...	330 00
	$1,695 00

Average annual expense for appraisement for five years,...	$339 00
Annual average expense for each county,	3 72½

To this sum should be added the actual traveling expense of the members. The expense is not, therefore, a serious objection.

I would only add, in conclusion, that I think a careful examination of the bill will commend its general features to the approval of the Senate.

Respectfully,

E. W. H. ELLIS,

Auditor of State.

SEC. —. Whenever any person shall notify the township clerk that he has procured such consent, such clerk shall notify the trustees of such township thereof, and such trustees shall meet at a time and place to be designated, such notice not exceeding three days after receipt of such consent, which they shall proceed to examine, and if satisfied that a majority of all the voters of such township have signed the same, they shall direct such clerk to issue license to the person applying to vend such liquors by retail, upon his paying to the treasurer of such township a sum to be by such trustees then and there designated, not less than ten, nor more than one hundred dollars.

Strike out sections 70, 71 and 72, and insert the following:

SEC. —. The plaintiff may join as many causes of action in his complaint as he sees proper, setting out each cause in a distinct paragraph, and numbering them. And the defendant shall answer distinctly, in separate paragraphs, each cause of action, clearly pointing out in each paragraph the particular cause answered.

SEC. —. When the plaintiff's complaint contains two or more causes of action growing out of separate and different matters, the defendant shall, on his first appearance after filing his answer, have, on motion, the right to separate trials on each or any of the causes that may be founded on the several and distinct transactions set forth in the complaint; but before the court shall grant such separate trials, the defendant shall make and file his affidavit, showing what causes are founded on separate and distinct transactions, and shall also set forth therein his reasons why separate trials are demanded, and which affidavit shall also state that the affiant is informed, and verily believes, that manifest injustice will be done the defendant, unless separate trials shall be granted. The affiant shall also set forth that the application to have separate trials, is not made merely for the purpose of delaying the trial of any one of the causes of complaint, but for the furtherance of justice. Thereupon the court, if satisfied of the truth of the facts in the affidavit, shall make an order granting separate trials on such different causes of complaint; and each cause of complaint thus severed, shall be docketed as a separate action, and such subsequent proceedings thereon shall be had in each cause, as though the several causes had been commenced originally as so many different actions.

SEC. —. When the plaintiff may have brought several actions against the same defendant or defendants, and the defendants offer to confess, or the plaintiff can otherwise obtain judgment thereon, at the same term of the court, the defendants shall have the right to move the court to consolidate the several judgments into one entry: Provided, The defendants shall, at the same time of making such motion, release all errors whatever, and waive all right of moving in arrest of judgment, and all right of appeal or error in a superior court. And thereupon the court shall, in its discretion, overrule or sustain the motion; and if sustained, order all of the judgments to be rendered in one entry on the order book; but nothing in this section shall in any manner operate to delay the plaintiff in obtaining judgment on any one or more of his causes of action.

Mr. Turman, from a select committee, submitted the following report:

MR. PRESIDENT:

The committee to whom was referred House bill No. 142, providing for the removal of the county seat of Clay county, would respectfully report that said bill contains two distinct provisions, one for the appointment of commissioners to relocate the seat of justice, and the other to compel the county commissioners to postpone the erection of public buildings in said county, until after said question of relocation shall have been acted upon by said commissioners appointed for that purpose. We are informed there exists now, and did at the time of the introduction of this bill, a contract entered into by the board for the erection of a court house in said county; and that the contractors are proceeding with said work.

This is a special law. Certain questions arise as to the constitutionality of such an enactment, which we will briefly present.

Section 25, article 4, of the new Constitution, is as follows: "In all cases enumerated in the preceding section, and in all other cases where a general law can be made applicable, all laws shall be general, and of uniform operation throughout the State."

This law effects Clay county alone. It will not operate upon the county seat of any other county; therefore it is not uniform, nor of general operation. It is argued sometimes that a general law cannot be made applicable to the removal of county seats. We would most respectfully ask, why not? We think that a general law can be so framed as to authorize a removal in any county of the State, when the conditions of that law shall have been complied with.

The policy of passing such a law is another question, not at all affecting the power to enact it. If we possess the power to enact a general law which would be applicable to this subject, and fail to exercise that power, such failure does not necessarily confer upon us the constitutional right to then enact a special law. In a word, if we can make a general law applicable at all, then we cannot, under the Constitution, apply a special enactment.

In construing this clause of the Constitution, it is our duty not only to look at the specific words employed, but also to revert to the causes which preceded, and impelled the convention to thus frame the section under consideration. Those reasons are, a portion of them, embodied in the address published by the convention at the close of its labors, to the voters of the State, and in the following language:

"The most important restrictions imposed upon the legislative branch, is that which provides that, in a variety of enumerated cases, (as the jurisdiction of justices of the peace,—the mode of doing county and township business,—the fees of county and township officers, road laws, common school laws, &c.) and in all other cases where a general law can be made applicable, no special law can be passed. It is an estimate much within the truth, that more than two-thirds of all the laws enacted in this State, since her admission into the Union, have been of the character here forbidden. More than two-thirds of our legislation, therefore, and the most confusing and mischievous portion of it is cut off by this single provision. Independently of the intrinsic benefits of such a change, the savings thereby effected, of expenses both as regards the time of the legislature and the cost of printing our laws, will be great."

By the above extract it will be seen that the convention itself considered this as the most important restriction in the Constitution which had been placed upon the legislative branch of the government; and among the enumerated restricted cases they placed that regulating county and township business as second.

And we might be permitted here to say, that a very serious question arises under section 22d, whether the passage of the bill under consideration is not absolutely and imperatively prohibited, even if said bill did not contain the section relative to contracts for public buildings. The reason is this: The removal or re-location of county seats, is apparently a part of the county business. If it is strictly county business, then we are absolutely prohibited from passing a special law. The law, then, must be general. But this latter is a point which we have not fully considered, for the reason that we believe the other points, which we have investigated, are clear and distinct against a special law, and which will be noticed more at length.

It will be recollected that great complaint was made before the call for a convention, on account of the vast amount of local legislation and the great consumption of time in attending to matters of a character where one enactment if properly matured would meet all similar cases that might arise for years; for instance there was not a session passed over that an application was not made in relation to vacating streets and alleys; matters which might be just as well attended to before the board of county commissioners, and less liable to be wrongfully granted or the power abused. Another difficulty which was intended to be avoided, was the manner of legislation; if a member from a county would ask the passage of a law affecting, however injuriously, any part of his constituents, his fellow members from a mistaken idea of courtesy, would permit it to pass. This was often taken advantage of by interested persons and the passage of laws obtained, which resulted to the benefit of the advocate and his special friends, and to the injury of those he pretended to represent. These and many other evils of legislation were intended to be avoided by requiring legislation to be general. This requirement makes it the duty and interest of every member of each house to look into all measures proposed, and compels them to throw off the false delicacy above alluded to.

Secondly. As to the provision in regard to the erection of public buildings, and which would postpone the completion of the contract entered into for that purpose, the first question that arises is, do we possess such power?

The Constitution of Indiana article 1st, section 23 is as follows:

"No ex post facto law, or law impairing the obligation of contracts, shall ever be passed."

This clause was doubtless inserted in pursuance of the following clause of the Constitution of the United States, article 1st section 10:

"No State shall pass any law impairing the obligation of contracts."

An able commentator upon the Constitution of the United States has adopted the following doctrine and language, which was published previous to, and in favor of the adoption of such constitution by the several States, to-wit:

"Bills of attainder, ex post facto laws and laws impairing the obligation of contracts, are contrary to the first principles of the social compact, and to every principle of sound legislation."

And further:

"The sober people of America are weary of the fluctuating policy, which has directed the public councils. They have seen with regret and indignation, that sudden changes, and legislative interferences, in cases affecting personal rights, become jobs in the hands of enterprising and influential speculators, and snares to the more industrious and less informed part of the community. They have seen, too, that one legislative interference is but the first link in a long chain of repetitions, every subsequent interference being naturally provoked by the effects of the preceding." See Story's Com. on Const. and reference, page 240, vol. 3.

This language is plain and intelligible. It shows that legislatures had previously resorted to such practices, and portrays some of the effects thereof; and the eminent writer above quoted from, there well says:

"Very properly, therefore, have the convention added this constitutional bulwark, in favor of personal security and private rights."

Judge Story then proceeds at page 250 to define what would amount to an invasion or breach of this clause of the constitution. It may be well for us also to say that the position taken by him has been repeatedly declared and sustained by the highest judicial tribunal known to our laws, the Supreme Court of the United States.

These high authorities are referred to not because of the importance of the present measure, in itself; but by reason of the precedent which it sets. If at the first session of the adoption of our new constitution, we should fail to exercise a due degree of caution in giving the proper construction of that instrument, in all its parts, we may involve ourselves, and those who come after us, in a maze of difficulties and inconsistencies.

But the language of Judge Story is as follows:

"In the next place, what may properly be deemed impairing the obligation of contracts, in the sense of the constitution? It is perfectly clear that any law which enlarges, abridges, or in any manner changes the intention of the parties, resulting from the stipulations in the contract, necessarily implies it. The manner or degree in which this change is effected, can in no respect influence the conclusion; for whether the law affect the validity, the construction, the duration, the discharge or the evidence of the contract, it impairs its obligation, though it may not do so to the same extent in all the supposed cases. Any deviation from its terms by postponing or accelerating the period of performance, which it prescribes; imposing conditions not expressed in the contract; or dispensing with the performance of those which are a part of the contract; however minute, or apparently immaterial in their effect upon it, impair its obligations. A fortiori (for that reason) a law which makes the contract wholly invalid, or extinguishes, or releases it, is a law impairing it."—Vide Story's Com. on the Const., page 250, vol. 3.

This bill is unconstitutional on another ground. The 22d section of the 4th article says:

"The General Assembly shall not pass local or special laws in any of the following enumerated cases, that is to say: Regulating county and township business, among other matters specially named. Certainly contracts for the erection of public buildings of a county, is a part of the county business, which it is the duty of the county board to enter into and carry into effect in good faith. This can only be done now, under and in pursuance of a general law. Such contracts cannot be regulated, either by enlarging or circumscribing the terms, or in any other way by a special law. The constitution positively and imperatively prohibits the passage of such special law. For instance, we cannot now enact a law that one county shall make contracts for present payment, and a neighboring county may contract on credit exclusively. But it is useless to amplify on this point; where the fundamental law positively prohibits us from doing a certain act, no hunting about for the reason of the prohibition will authorize us to disregard it.

Entertaining these views, your committee would respectfully recommend that the bill be laid upon the table.

The question then being, will the Senate concur in the report of the committee?

The standing committee on the State prison, to whom was referred House bill relative to the relief of Samuel H. Patterson, lessee of said prison, have had the same under consideration, and having reported the same back with a recommendation to strike out from the enacting clause, and insert what now constitutes the body of the bill on its passage, beg leave to report that they were governed in their opinion by petitions from sundry citizens from Clark and Floyd counties, praying for the relief of said lessee. These petitions were backed in their assertions by affidavits of officers connected with the prison, affirming the amount of losses sustained by the small pox and cholera which prevailed among the inmates of the prison. The lessee was not only deprived of the services by death of about thirty hands, but the epidemic extended itself so as to produce an entire suspension of his business for several months. Your committee believe that twenty thousand dollars would not more than remunerate for the time lost by the above named epidemics; and your committee further desire to say that they believe it but an act of justice to the lessee, that he should be relieved from the payment to the State of an equal amount.

Besides the above enumerated cases of losses, the lessee has sustained a loss by fire to the amount of about thirty thousand dollars, all of which has been ascertained by the proper officers and individuals connected with the State prison. And your committee beg leave that this report accompany the affidavits now on file with the bill.

Which was agreed to.

Mr. Berry moved to refer the bill to a select committee, with the following instructions:

Enquire into and report to the Senate, the rights of the parties affected by the bill, the amount necessary to rebuild that part of the State Prison, recently destroyed by fire, and what reason there is, if any, that the State should release the lessee from the payment of over twenty thousand dollars of his rent over and above the expenditure contemplated by this bill? And what reason, if any there be, why the State should make good the misfortune in business of one citizen, whilst other unfortunate citizens are not provided for by similar means? And how far the contract between the State and the Lessee has been complied with? And the propriety of permitting the Lessee to rescind his contract if he considers it profitable to him?

Mr. Hanna moved further to instruct the committee to inquire whether the Legislature has the power under the 24th section of the constitution to enact this law.

A division of the question was called for.

The President having decided the question divisible;

The first question was, will the Senate recommit the bill?

The Senate met.

Hon. James H. Lane, Lieutenant Governor, in the chair.

The President laid before the Senate the following communication from the Auditor of State.

OFFICE OF AUDITOR OF STATE, }
INDIANAPOLIS, May 25, 1852. }

HON. JAMES H. LANE,

President of the Senate:

SIR:—I have received the following resolution of the House, to wit:

"Resolved, That the Auditor of State be requested to inform this House why thirty-one counties of this State were taxed in 1847 for 93,617 acres of land, less than the same counties were taxed for in 1846, while the other counties were taxed for 214,859 acres more in 1847 than in 1846. Also, why 50 counties decreased in the value of their lands from 1842 to 1847—from ten to fifty per cent. while during the same time the other counties increased from five to twenty-five per cent. as is shown by the Auditor's report of 1847.

Resolved further, That in case said Auditor is of opinion that the lands in the several counties are unequally assessed, he be requested to suggest some method to remedy the injustice of such inequality."

The facts noticed in the first resolution were brought to the attention of the then Auditor of State, at the time to which it refers, and I know of no other explanation than what was given by him in his annual report for the year 1847. He says:

"The decrease in so many counties in the number of acres of land assessed in 1847 compared with the assessment of 1846, is rather remarkable. It may in part be accounted for by supposing that in 1846 there may have been double assessments, that some may have been assessed which had been purchased by the banks in the collection of their debts, which by a decision of the Supreme Court, are exempt from taxation as lands, and are considered as a part of their stock, and that in some counties an erroneous interpretation may still be given to the Act approved January 19, 1846, entitled "an act to subject certain lands to taxation," constraining it to exempt all school lands from taxation, until ten years after the time of the sale, when it obviously means, taken in connection with other enactments, to continue to tax them according to the amount paid, until the expiration of ten years after their sale, and after that to the full amount, whether fully paid or not.

The Auditor also found the appraisement of 1846 to be very unequal, and in relation thereto made the following very just and sensible remarks:

"The column showing the average rate per acre of land in 1847, cannot fail to demonstrate the inequality of the valuation of real estate, made in 1846, and the propriety of adopting some mode, if possible, by which the inequality may be remedied. The average rate taking the whole State together, is undoubtedly low; but it is not so material whether the valuation be low or high, as it is that it be equal. Nothing can be so well calculated to commend to public favor a revenue system, or to induce a cheerful compliance with its requisitions, as the belief that it is just and equitable. There is no doubt that locality and fertility of soil should have much to do with the valuation of lands for taxation, but it would seem strange that the value of lands in counties contiguous to each other, should vary so much as this table indicates; and it seems hardly probable that a valuation can be equal, no matter in what part of the State the lands may be situated, which fixes the average value per acre of lands in some counties at nine dollars, and in others at two dollars."

I have no other means of answering the inquiries embraced in the first resolution.

The appraisement of 1851 was made under embarrassing circumstances. The act itself was full of contradictions, and it became necessary in order to carry out the intentions of the Legislature, to disregard some of its provisions. The appraisement had to be completed within a limited period, and in most of the counties it was performed by several individuals whose valuation of property was anything but uniform, and whose capacity for this important task may in many instances be doubted.

The result is that probably not in one county in ten is the real estate estimated up to its actual value, and the want of uniformity is fully as great as under the appraisement of 1846. Some of the county boards took it upon themselves to adjust matters to their own satisfaction—in LaGrange county reducing the valuation one-half, and in eight of the ten townships in Ripley county making a deduction of one-third, &c. Most of the county boards and county auditors have complied with the provisions of "an act providing a remedy for the illegal reduction of the aggregate valuation of real estate in the several counties of this State," approved Jan. 12, 1852, but the officers in the county of Ripley utterly refuse to comply with it in any respect, and treat the law as a nullity.

Under this state of facts there are but three alternatives; either to submit to the great injustice of an unequal appraisement or to adjust and equalize it by some competent authority, or lastly to provide for a new valuation.

It cannot be expected that men whose rights are solemnly guaranteed to them by the constitution, and who are taxed to their utmost capacity for the support of the Government, in its various branches, will submit to the manifest injustice of the present valuation without a murmur. Their complaints are just and reasonable, and they have a right to be heard.

A system of equalization, commencing with the county boards, to correct errors and equalize the valuation between the individuals of the county, a district board composed of the several county auditors of the congressional districts, and a State board, composed of delegates from district boards with the Auditor of State as their presiding officer, strikes me more favourably than any other that has been suggested. It is doubtful, however, whether this would be a sufficient remedy for the inequalities of the present valuation.

In a young and growing State like ours the relative value of real estate is constantly changing; and however equal the valuation of this year, another year may see it operating oppressively upon some portions of the State. Frequent valuations are therefore necessary, and to ensure exact justice an annual valuation. Certainly as often as once in three years the appraisement should be made.

The remedy I would respectfully suggest, in compliance with the second resolution, is therefore a reappraisement of the real estate to be taken by competent officers, adequately compensated, and to be completed by the first of April, 1853. I would also create a board of equalization in the manner heretofore suggested, who should complete their work prior to the first of June succeeding, that it might appear upon the Duplicate of 1853.

In this manner we shall only suffer for two years under the injustice of the present appraisement, and shall probably have learned something from the experience of the past.

I have the honor to be,

Very respectfully,

E. W. H. ELLIS,

Auditor of State.

Mr. Holloway submitted the following remarks:

MR. PRESIDENT:

For the fourth time during the present session of the Legislature the great leveller of mortality, Death, has entered these halls, admonishing us that "no one knows when the hour or the day may come," which shall call us to enter upon the realities of the unknown and untried spirit land. It is well that we should turn aside from the transaction of the ordinary business of legislation to contemplate the uncertainty of life—to forget the excited and angry feelings which are too frequently engendered here in debate, to forgive real or imaginary injuries inflicted or received from each other, and humbly implore at the throne of Divine mercy, a preparation of our hearts for that sad change, which in the decrees of Almighty God must visit us all sooner or later.

Resolutions relative to the decease of I. H. Morris, late a member of the House of Representatives from the county of Henry, have just been reported to the Senate. It has been my fortune to have enjoyed the acquaintance and, I trust, the personal friendship of the deceased. In that intimacy I have ever found him possessed of sterling integrity—of high moral virtues, and an unswerving devotion to justice and to right. In the private relations of life, all the domestic affections which honor man, clustered around his heart, and spread their influence through the circle in which he moved. As a legislator he was active, faithful, and conscientious in the discharge of all the duties which devolved upon him.

The severing of the ties which bind us to our family and friends, and the pleasures of this world, is hard to endure under the most favorable circumstances; but when absent from home and its associations—surrounded by strangers instead of friends, fond and cherished, the sundering of those ties is far more poignant and severe. Although the hand of friends administered to the wants of the deceased—although the skill of physicians eminent in practice was exerted, and although the prayers of a fond wife, the tears of affectionate children, were offered to implore that the cup of death might pass away, yet the golden cord of life was broken, and him whom we have known so long and so well shall we know no more on this earth. But we have a confident hope that in his separation from earth he has entered upon the joys of never ending bliss beyond the grave.

When,

On motion by Mr. Hickman,

The resolutions were unanimously concurred in.

When,

On motion by Mr. Mickle,

The Senate adjourned.

SEC. —. That whenever the citizens of any county in this State shall desire to remove or relocate the seat of justice of such county, they shall have the right so to do, under the following rules and regulations:

First. A petition shall be presented to the board of commissioners of such county, signed by a majority of the legal voters of the same, of whose signatures, for the purpose in such petition contemplated, due proof shall be made before said board.

Second. Said petition shall pray for the removal or relocation of said county seat to a certain point therein particularly designated.

Third. Notice of said intended application shall be given.

SEC. —. Upon the presentation and due proof of said notice and petition, it shall be the duty of said board to make or cause to be made, a neat estimate of the amount necessary to erect a court house and other public buildings sufficient for said county.

SEC. —. Said board shall also proceed to select by lot from the names of twelve persons, not residents nor landholders of such county, three persons as appraisers, whose duty it shall be under oath, to hear evidence if any shall be offered, and to make and award estimates of the damages, if any, which may result from such removal or relocation, to any person applying therefor, either by the depreciation of the value of real estate, and improvements thereon, or by change or injury of land titles. Providd, said application for damages shall be made within one year after the publication of notice of the appointment of said appraisers; and that no person who signed a petition for removal shall be entitled to damages.

Such application for damages shall be filed with the auditor of the county, whose duty it shall be after the filing the same in his office, to notify said appraisers of their appointment, and the time of their meeting at the then county seat of such county; and he shall also give notice of the time and place of the meeting of said appraisers.

SEC. —. SEC. —. The appraisers herein provided for, shall also in addition to making estimates of damages proceed to locate such seat of justice, at the point in said petition named; they shall also ascertain upon what terms a fee simple title to the lands upon which said county seat is to be located can be procured; any propositions made upon that subject shall be made out at length in writing and returned and filed by said appraisers as a part of their report, and said written proposition of said land owner shall be obligatory upon him.

Said votes shall be returned by the return judges, and canvassed in the same manner that returns are made of other elections, and if a majority of the voters of the county shall vote in favor of such removal said county commissioners shall then proceed to give notice of, and at as early a day as convenient thereafter, receive proposals and make contracts for the erection of the necessary public buildings, which contracts may be made by said board or an agent selected to superintend such contracting and building.

SEC. —. Notice of the submission of the question of removal to the voters of the county shall be given by the sheriff of such county; which notice shall state directly that the vote will be taken upon the question of removal to the point, naming it, in said notice, designated in said petition.

SEC. —. If any person shall desire to make donations of land towards the erection of public buildings at said point in said petition named, they can do the same by causing the same to be entered upon the order book of the circuit court, at length over the proper signature of the donor, and when so entered, shall from that date operate as a lien upon the real estate of the donor.

SEC. —. Every notice contemplated in this act shall be given by publication for thirty days in a newspaper of general circulation, if any may be published in the county, and if none is so published, then by written notices stuck up in three of the most public places in each township of such county, for the same length of time.

SENATORS:

I am admonished by the early day fixed for the adjournment that the moment for our separation has arrived. The associations that have existed during the last three years are about to be dissolved. I congratulate you upon your success in completing the great work you were sent here to perform.

Your fond anticipations are about to be realized. The bills originated by you, on all the important subjects, will pass by the day fixed or your adjournment. All the statute laws of the State have been revised, and will be republished in one volume. The code simplifying the practice and pleadings in our courts of justice, reported by the commissioners having that duty, will be perfected and adopted. When this great work is completed, Indiana, with a Constitution that will favorably compare with any now in existence, will have a code of laws, plainly and concisely worded, corresponding with the provisions of that instrument, published in one volume, that all may read and understand.

You return to your constituents, with the proud satisfaction that the great work is finished. Take with you the thanks of one who has endeavored, with honesty of purpose, to aid you in forwarding the legislative business; who has been governed by a sincere desire faithfully to discharge every duty; of one who has, no doubt, committed manifold errors, but has perpetrated no intentional wrong.

During the three years I have had the honor to preside over this body, I have not for a single moment had reason to complain of the conduct of a single member. All have aided me in the discharge of my duties; all have been kind and courteous. We separate now, perhaps forever; but so long as I live, will I remember your many kindnesses. Farewell, friends; may health and happiness attend you.

OFFICE OF THE STATE PRINTER, }
INDIANAPOLIS, June 11, 1852. }

HON. JAMES H. LANE,

President of the Senate:

We are in receipt of the following resolution of the Senate, to-wit:

Resolved, That the State Printer report to the Senate as early as possible, the length of time required by law to print and have ready for distribution the laws passed at the present session; also, to report whether the Secretary of State or any other person is by duty bound to make a synopsis of the provisions thereof, and index the same; and if not, to propose a plan by which these can be done, to the best interest of the State.

And in answer thereto we state, that the volume of session laws, together with the journals, and such other matters as the General Assembly may direct, will be printed within the time allowed by law, (sixty days after the adjournment) provided there be no delay in furnishing the copy.

The Revised Code can be printed by the first of December next, if we are supplied with copy one month after the adjournment. We are making ample arrangements for the most prompt publication of the Code.

It is the duty of the Secretary of State to make a synopsis of the provisions and index to the laws of each session; but whether that would cover the Revised Code and the Code of Civil and Criminal proceedings, we do not say. But as it is more in the line of duty of the Secretary of State than any other officer, in the absence of any provision by the Legislature, we should think it would be his duty. We regard it as important that the time for preparing and arranging the laws for the Revised Code, should be limited.

In order to limit it to a month, we think it would be best to associate with the Secretary of State for that space of time, either a member of the Legislature or some other person, so that no delay occur in this respect.

Very respectfully submitted,

ELLIS & SPANN,

For the State Printer.

The President laid before the Senate the following communication from the Law Commissioners.

COMMISSIONER'S ROOM, }
INDIANAPOLIS, June 11th, 1852. }

HON. S. S. MICKLE,

President of the Senate:

SIR:—Will you please lay before the Senate over which you have the honor to preside the report herewith submitted.

We have the honor to be,

Very respectfully yours,

WALTER MARCH,

G. W. CARR,

LUCIAN BARBOUR.

} Commissioners.

To the Honorable the General Assembly of the State of Indiana:

The commissioners on Practice and Pleading have the honor to submit herewith their final report.

The commissioners considering it to be a part of the duty imposed upon them by the law creating the commission, and believing that it would facilitate the understanding of the code, and aid in introducing uniformity in the practice have prepared some forms of process, affidavits, undertakings and also of pleading in civil and criminal actions.

They would have preferred presenting the forms along with the code, had it not been necessary to report the latter as early as possible in order to be considered and acted upon at the present session of the Legislature.

They have not thought it necessary to incur the expense of printing a large number of forms, as it is believed that those presented will serve to illustrate the principles upon which the pleadings and other papers may be drawn. And as one of the leading features of the code is that parties shall not be bound to use any arbitrary forms of pleading, it is recommended simply to enact that the forms presented may be used and when used shall be deemed sufficient, leaving parties to select any other form that they may prefer, provided they contain the substance of what the law requires.

Not having had access to the bill defining misdemeanors, only one form of an Information is given. As, however, an information does not differ from an indictment except in the commencement, the form given, together with the forms of indictments, it is thought will answer every purpose.

At the close of the report, the form of an indictment for murder taken from a standard work on criminal pleading, is contrasted with one of the forms proposed in the same case, in order to exhibit the difference in the length of the pleading. On comparison it is believed that a like difference will be found throughout all the forms in criminal and civil pleading. There may be some alterations required in the forms to meet the amendments that have been made to the code since it was reported.

Respectfully submitted,

WALTER MARCH,
G. W. CARR,
LUCIAN BARBOUR.

Mickle, President of the Senate pro tem., for the able, impartial and dignified manner in which he has discharged his duties as the presiding officer of this body, and that the general satisfaction he has given, is but a partial tribute of respect for his acceptance, prompt and efficient discharge of the trusts so often during the present session confided to him.

Mr. Hanna offered the following resolution:

Resolved, That the thanks of the Senate are due, and are hereby tendered to the Hons. Jas. Scott Hester and Norman Eddy, for the able manner in which they have discharged the duties devolved upon them as members of the joint committee selected to revise our statutes.

Which was unanimously adopted.

When,

Mr. Hester submitted the following remarks:

MR. PRESIDENT AND SENATORS:

Our association as a co-ordinate branch of the Legislature will shortly terminate. Many of us will never meet again, but I trust we will ever cherish a remembrance of the moments we have spent together in this capital. I speak for myself, but I utter the language of the heart, when I say that the hour when this body dissolves will be a sad one to me.

A young man, preceded by unfavorable reports, followed by the persecutions of the bitterest of enemies, you received me kindly and greeted me with the sweet words of consolation. When the future seemed to me but a barren waste, you bid me despair not, and whispered that magic word which, above all others, energizes while it chastens human actions—hope! That God who commanded to mortals, in terms as strong as human language furnishes, the practice of that sublimest of Christian virtues, charity, will remember you in the hour of adversity, if the prayers of a grateful heart avail.

But I rose, sir, chiefly to present an epitome of the labors of this session, which, when its duration is compared with the important results attendant and the difficulties besetting it, has been unusually short.

A new organic law, demanding radical legislative enactment, had supplanted the one which had become antiquated and unsuited to the advances of free institutions. And while it required of us the passage of laws new in their character, it imposed such restraints upon hasty legislation as necessarily prevented the completion of the labors of the session at an earlier day. It required a new organization of our important courts, the simplification of the rules of pleading and practice in civil and criminal cases, the establishment of courts of conciliation, and the enactment of general incorporation laws. The changes it made rendered it necessary that many other laws should be revised, and the people expected that we would compile into appropriate volumes the various acts passed since the revision of 1843, and condense that revision within a reasonable compass.

That work is now completed after a session of one hundred and sixty-four legislative days. That the business of the session, demanded at our hands by the Constitution and the people, could have been finished sooner, no sane man, conversant with the difficulties embarrassing our progress, anticipated. Indeed, it is a subject of surprise, as well as congratulation, that our labors are so soon to terminate at that point when we can safely say, "It is finished." We have passed over two hundred bills and joint resolutions, several of them larger in compass than the acts of an ordinary session of the General Assembly. The work of one week alone will make a volume five times larger than all the acts of the present session of Congress, though that body has been in session forty days longer than ours.

We have made radical changes in the laws regulating all our courts and the conduct of their officers, established two new courts of conciliation and common pleas, provided for the election of all judicial officers by the people at the general election, passed new laws concerning the incorporation of banks, railroads, plank roads, cities, towns, voluntary associations, high schools, colleges and universities; and modified the jurisdiction of grand jurors, increased the amount of property from execution to three hundred dollars, prescribed new rules regulating the laws of descent and conveyance, and abolishing the tenancies of dower and courtesy, changed the practice in the settlement of decedent's estates and provided suitable forms therefor; established new and wholesome rules for the conveyance of real property, with short and convenient forms; provided codes of practice in civil and criminal cases, and appropriate forms of procedure therein; changed the manner of selecting and empanneling traverse jurors, and compelling officers to give new bonds and additional sureties; provided for a circuit and common pleas district, prosecuting attornies and their compensation; passed an act for the sale of the swamp lands, and for the assessment and collection of State and county revenue with many new provisions; provided a uniform system of common schools, and of a new method of township organization, and for the equalization of real property; prescribed new duties for supervisors of, and changed the old modes of laying out and vacating highways; and have made many other important changes in almost every law of a nature, such as the wants of the people clearly demanded.

Besides this, sir, we have disposed of that most troublesome and exciting of all subjects of legislation, districting the State for congressional and judicial purposes; all these had to be of a general nature, and to receive the sanction of twenty-six votes in the Senate and fifty-one in the House before they became laws.

To accomplish that end, required mutual concession; coming from various parts of the State and representing peculiar interests, much discussion necessarily intervened before compromise grounds were discovered. Then, sir, each bill had to be read three times on three several days in each House. Under the old constitution a bill, local to a particular county might have been introduced and passed through both Houses in fifteen minutes, which now would have to be committed, discussed and modified so as to conform to the views of a constitutional majority in each House, and then be six days en route through the two branches of the legislature. This necessarily occasions delay, while it prevents hasty legislation. I shall not trouble you farther with the details of the embarrassments under which we have labored, nor the amount of business which we have transacted.

In short, Senators, we have reason to congratulate ourselves and those we represent, on the happy termination of our responsible and arduous duties as members of the present General Assembly.

Let what we have done stand the test of time. We need not be ashamed of the record. It will exhibit greater results both in quantity and quality than has ever attended the labors of any legislative body in this country, during the same length of time. By it let us stand or fall.

In conclusion, Mr. President, I propose the following sentiment:

THE MEMBERS OF THE PRESENT SENATE OF INDIANA: May the same spirit of amity and courteous bearing which has characterized their intercourse during the present session be continued through every change in after life, and the remembrance of their deliberations ever live green in their memories.

Which remarks were,

Which I am directed to bring to the Senate for the signature of the President thereof.

Whereupon the President signed the same.

Mr. Milliken, from the committee on Temperance, submitted the following report:

MR. PRESIDENT:

The committee on Temperance, to whom was referred sundry temperance memorials, asking for the passage of a law similar to the Maine liquor law, have had the subject under consideration, and have directed me to report that, in the opinion of the committee, it would be a waste of time to introduce a bill in accordance with the prayer of the petitioners, as the Senate has decided, by a large majority against such an enactment.

Your committee, however, feel it a duty they owe to the public to state that, in their opinion, no law is more loudly called for by the voice of the people, the necessities of the case, and the beneficial effects it would produce, than a stringent law for the suppression of tippling-houses. The blighting and demoralizing influences of dram-shops are not alone felt and endured in the humble circles of society, but have entered the highest ranks, and prostrated the gifted. Many who have filled high places in the State and nation have fallen by strong drink. Its degrading and demoralizing influence is felt in every section of the State, and among all classes, from the highest to the lowest. It has brutalized the husband and father so as to render him an object of terror, instead of love and support to his helpless and dependent family. It has crushed its thousands, and is, and has been continually, a dead and grievous weight upon the happiness, prosperity and intelligence of the State. Then, in view of this great evil, is it to be wondered at that the people are waking up on this subject, and are pouring in upon us their petitions by the tens of thousands for redress—for even the Maine law.

This law has been enacted by three States, and one Territory, to-wit: Maine, Massachusetts, Rhode Island, and Minnesota; but it has only been tried by the test of experience in Maine. From this State we have the most cheering accounts of its salutary operations, from undoubted sources. Your committee cannot refrain from referring to some of the statistics on this subject. In Bangor, the commitments to jail for drunkenness and assaults have fallen off about 60 per cent. Commitments to the watch-house have fallen off about two-thirds, and the expense thereof nearly three-fourths; and the quantity of liquor consumed is only one-fourth as much as it was before the passage of the Maine liquor law. The state of the streets and city generally, as it regards drunkenness, according to the City Marshal's statement, is improved 75 per cent. The application for aid to the overseers of the poor has decreased one-half, and four or five hundred dollars has been added to the poll tax of the city in the past year. The report of the superintendent of the pauper establishment of the city shows that the out-door expenses have been diminished 50 per cent. since the passage of the liquor law, and the expenses of the almshouse, resulting from intemperance, have been diminished 97 per cent. The cost of support of common drunkards in the house of correction, in Penobscot county, has been reduced 72½ per cent. since the passage of this law.

We might multiply statistics of the salutary operation of this law, but it would swell this report to a greater length than is desirable. Enough has been produced to show the incalculable benefits of the Maine liquor law.

The opponents of this law have attempted to make the impression that it is unpopular in Maine, but the recent election in that State silences this rumor. Ninety-nine towns elected full Maine law boards, seven were divided, and thirty went against the law.

Your committee cannot close this report without expressing their firm convictions that the prayer of the petitioners ought to be granted, and that dram-shops will never be suppressed without stringent law against vending intoxicating liquors.

The petitions are herewith returned to the Senate, with the recommendation that they be deposited in the box procured for that purpose.

The committee ask to be discharged from the further consideration of the subject.

JAS. P. MILLIKEN,
Chairman.

Mr. Berry moved that the report lie on the table, that the committee be discharged from the further consideration of the subject, and that the petitions be disposed of as recommended by the committee;

Which motion prevailed.

Resolved, That a committee of three be appointed on the part of the Senate, to act with a similar committee on the part of the House of Representatives, to wait on His Excellency, the Governor, and inform him that the two Houses have gone through with the business of the session, and are now ready to adjourn sine die, unless he has some further communication to make, and that the House be requested to reciprocate this resolution.

Mr. Niblack, from the select committee appointed to wait upon his Excellency, the Governor, submitted the following report:

MR. PRESIDENT:

The committee appointed to wait on the Governor, and ascertain whether he has any further communication to make to the General Assembly, have discharged that duty and report that the Executive has no further communication to make to either branch.

That he congratulates the representatives of the people upon the bringing to a close their arduous and responsible duties in framing a Revised Code of general statutes for a people who, for more than a third of a century, have been governed by special and local laws.

That he further congratulates the members of this General Assembly upon having completed their task, the first revision under the new constitution, in a shorter time than the same has been effected in any State having as large a population; and in a manner which, as he confidently believes, will not only meet with the cordial approval of their constituents throughout the length and breadth of the State, but establish for Indiana throughout the Union, the reputation of having led the way in various essential practical reforms, eminently in accordance with the advancing spirit of the age.

The Governor is of opinion that in the five months session which is now about to close, there has been consummated more legislation than will be necessary in as many years to come; the great labor of the present having anticipated, and rendered unnecessary, much labor in the future.

And, finally, the Governor begged the committee to say, for him, to the respective Houses, that, in taking leave of their members and officers, he wishes each and all of them health and happiness, a pleasant journey and safe return to their families and constituency.

SENATORS:—The time of our separation is at hand; the business for which we were sent here is completed. Whether it is well or otherwise, is for time and experience to determine. That errors and inaccuracies will be found in our labors is to be expected. I speak advisedly when I say that the same amount of labor, in the same length of time, has never been performed by any legislative body that has ever assembled as has been performed by this General Assembly, however much that may be. I would not do justice were I on this occasion to fail in bearing witness to your zeal and untiring industry in preparing and pushing forward the important work cut out for us by the new constitution of the State. But I did not rise on this occasion to pronounce a eulogy on your services, that I trust and confidently believe will be done by a generous and approving constituency. For myself I would do violence to my feelings were I not to return to you my heartfelt acknowledgments for the generous, kind and courteous treatment which I have from time to time received at your hands, not only your partiality in assigning to me the honor of presiding over your deliberations, but for your generous support and kind forbearance while occupying that important position; and also for the high compliment you have seen fit to bestow on me by the adoption of resolutions approving in the most flattering terms, of the manner in which I have discharged the duties of this high trust. Recollections so dear as these will ever be cherished with the fondest regard and in future life be it long or short I will feel a pleasure in their contemplation above, far above the ordinary pleasures of life.

I am not vain enough to presume that in the duties of the chair I have been free from errors, but if I have committed errors (and I have no doubt committed many,) I feel a pleasure in knowing that they were errors of the head and not of the heart. And now hoping that the blessings of kind heaven may rest on each member and officer of this Senate as well as on our happy State and nation: I wish each of you a safe and speedy journey to your respective homes and happy meetings with your families and friends, as well as the smiles of an approving constituency.

And now to close my official duties I declare this Senate adjourned sine die.

When,

On motion by Mr. Alexander,
The Senate adjourned sine die.

JAMES H. VAWTER,
Assistant Secretary of the Senate.

From the decision of the Hon. Jas. H. Lane, President of the Senate.

SENATE, January 21, 1852.

Mr. Slack moved to reconsider the vote on the passage of Senate bill No. 6, which motion was entertained by the President of the Senate.

Messrs. Dunn and Marshall took an appeal from the decision of the President, that where a bill fails on its passage, from the want of a constitutional majority, any member voting with the largest number, may make a motion to reconsider.

The question being, shall the decision of the chair stand as the judgment of the Senate?

It was decided in the affirmative—ayes 30, noes 14.

ERRATA.

" 224, at the bottom of the page, "No. 12 of the House, a joint resolution in relation to patents," evidently should have read "No. 11 of the House, a joint resolution in relation to a donation of lands for a geological and topographical survey."

" 256, line 5th from the bottom, for "David L. Land" read "David T. Laird."

" 307, line 11th from the top, for "25" read "55."

" 353, line 13th, for "57" read "51."

" 355, line 16th, for "68" read "67."

" 424, line 13th, for "Senate bill" read "House bill."

" 453, line 22d, for "bring" read "being."

" 495, line 16th, for "12" read "21."

" 500, line 5th, for "12" read "21."

" 501, line 7th, for "12" read "21."

" 533, line 2d, for "Senate bill" read "House bill."

" 549, for "House bill No. 84" read "Senate bill No. 84."

" 599, line 15th, for "38" read "138."

" 640, line 4th, "Senate bill No. 39" is evidently an error.

" 672, line 3d from the bottom, for "95" read "93."
